Fort Celebrates 20th Anniversary

This year was a very special one for Fort Hunt; we celebrated our twentieth anniversary. Over the years the students and most of the staff have changed, but the Fort and its purpose have remained basically the same.

In the last twenty years Fort Hunt students have experienced numerous major events: the protest movements of the sixties, Vietnam, Watergate, the Beatles, and gas crises. The Fort even survived a fire that threatened to close the school's doors permanently, but the Federals persevered; and now Fort Hunt is stronger than ever.

Trying to persuade Jennifer Caffery to change her ways, Mark Wilson shows her the latest in GQ.

What Lies Ahead?

Looking ahead toward the next twenty years, the future seems uncertain. Will declining enrollment bring about Fort Hunt's demise, or will the student body increase to the size it once was? How will students in the year 2003 live, act, and dress? Only time will tell.

At the leadership conference, Scott Flanders watches with amusement as his friends try unsuccessfully to make a pyramid.

What did we as Fort Hunt students do between 2:20 and 8:15 Monday through Friday, not to mention the weekends? We participated in extra-curricular activities, watched or participated in sporting events, worked, partied, and did many other things. The good times we all shared will not soon be forgotten.

In addition to our activities as individuals, we joined together as classes to make Fort Hunt what it is. We are different from the classes in years before us, just as we are different from the classes of the years to come.

Fort Celebrates Its Annual Homecoming

On Friday October 16, 1982, excitement permeated the air as Fort Hunt High School prepared to celebrate its twentieth Homecoming. Throughout the entire week, the unbeatable Federal spirit had been rising as students went all out for Spirit Week dress-up days.

The pitch rose to a frenzy by Thursday evening as the Feds put their finishing touches on hall decorations and floats and attended a roaring bonfire sponsored by the Key Club.

The weather was perfect on Friday afternoon as the Homecoming Parade made its way down Waynewood Boulevard, complete with the various floats and ever-smiling princesses.

At the game that evening returning college freshmen were reunited with their old friends. The few drops of rain that fell disturbed no one's excitement. As the final seconds of the second quarter ticked by, the crowd's attention turned toward the floats and princesses circling the field at halftime.

A quiet hush came over the stadium as the princesses were presented; suspense filled the air as the name of the lucky girl about to become the 1982 queen was announced. It was no longer a secret, and cheers went up when the name Bronwyn Smith was heard.

The high level of excitement continued throughout the second half as the crushing Federal team dominated their opponent, the Hayfield Hawks.

The 1982 Homecoming Queen Bronwyn Smith is crowned by Principal Thomas Cabelus as last year's Queen, Hodie Korb, congratulates her.

Fed Females Take the Field

The Fort Hunt Federals reversed roles on the football field again this year as the Junior girls attempted to score points over the Senior women. The Juniors were the first to score at this traditional game. The Junior's only touchdown was scored by Brenda Diggs. However, this only triggered the spirit and enthusiasm of the class of '83.

Despite lack of yardage and penalties, the Seniors were still able to keep their sense of fun and fair play. After two quarters the Seniors discovered the Junior strategy and were able to side-step their brutality. The Seniors got the ball on their 40 yard line with two minutes left in the third quarter. On a long run up the middle by Susan Casperson, the class of '83 gained 30 yards. Susan then passed the ball to Karen Boska in the corner of the end zone. Kathy White caught the two point conversion in the opposite corner. Kathy also scored the Senior's second touchdown, and Karen Boska made the two point conversion.

Once again, the Seniors proved the superiority of their class. The final score: Seniors 16 — Juniors 8.

60's Take Over

The traditional spirit of Fort Hunt was proven once again by the enthusiasm of the students during Homecoming week.

The theme this year was "The 60's"; the four day week was started off with what else, "60's day!!" Samuel Russell was voted best dressed and overall the Junior Class won. "Pajama Day" was also a great success as many students roamed the halls in their fuzzy slippers clutching their teddy bears and pillows.

Scott Flanders won best sleepy head and naturally the freshman won overall. "Twin day" was the day to grab a friend and dress alike. Many heads turned as these "dynamic duos" passed by. Diane Grimm and Tracey Sherman paired up as punk rockers; however, it was the spirited senior class that stole the day.

Concluding our hectic spirit week, Federals celebrated the Fort's 20th year Anniversary with a "Fort Hunt Birthday Party" and cake was served compliments of the Student Government. The Friday afternoon pep rally was a perfect end to the week as the psyched up Federals prepared to defeat the Hayfield Hawks that night.

Feds Get Down

After a fun-filled Spirit Week and an enthusiastic football game, the Federals were ready for the long-awaited Homecoming Dance to celebrate their victory over the Hayfield Hawks, 28-8. The dance was sponsored by the Student Government and refreshments were provided by various clubs.

Beforehand many couples enjoyed eating out, while others enjoyed the comfort and leisure of preparing their own dinner. Many things were different this year. The dance was held in the gym, and, because of the wood floor, shoes were not allowed, making dancing more comfortable. Instead of the traditional long dress, semi-formal attire such as cocktail dresses were worn.

Rockin' to the sounds of "Oz" the energetic Federals did their stuff! It was a night of both romance and socializing. Many compliments were passed and although romance was in the air, some chose to wander off by themselves. As 12:30 rolled around, the dancing ended; however, for most the night was still young.

Sometimes girl talk is more important than dancing as Krissy Oehrlein and Michelle Gaunya once again take the floor.

Feasting from the dance, Ronnie Reaves and Tnara Bee take advantage of the delicious munchies.

Stuffing herself with pizza, Chris Boska contemplates tomorrow's diet.

After a candlelit dinner for two, Tony Lawrence forgets to get down on one knee for the big question to Jean Nason.

Before picking up their dates, Jack Reed and Tom Irvin take parts out of the car to make sure it will break down after the movie.

Everyday of the busy school session, students come to Fort Hunt High School to learn, study, socialize and participate in activities. The high school is its own world, with all of the students' lives basically revolving around it.

However, there does, of course, exist a world and life beyond the doors of Fort Hunt. This world is, in fact, one of the most important aspects of an individual's high school education. It is here that one is free to pursue his or her own interests, be it a special hobby, partying and having a good time or, perhaps most importantly, seeking and hopefully finding, a new job.

This "Life Beyond the Fort" helps to prepare one for the challenges and responsibilities that promise to suddenly become important matters in everyone's life after graduation; challenges like forming a separate life from one's parents, seeking employment, attending college and generally experiencing the world as an adult, an exciting but frightening prospect.

For now, The Fort is a Federal's major focus in life; but as time marches on and one class after another leaves its doors forever, the experiences an individual has gained in his "Life Beyond" will enrich and aid in his future.

After a day of rowing, this gang heads for more enjoyable activities.

Working her fifth straight hour, Lou Bustle calmly deals with another overring.

Mesmerized by Pac-Man, Eileen Serafin spends hours eating up those little-bitty dots.

Playing the part of the nervous husband, Chris Hummel escorts his satisfied wife, Julie Ungerleider, to the dance floor.

Coming to the dance stag, Jeff Gaetjen spots his Daisy Mae from across the room.

Lines begin forming as anxious couples await their weddings

Daisy Mae Snags Abner

Friday, November 19, 1982, the night of Fort Hunt's Sadie Hawkins Dance, was certainly a night for little 'ole Daisy Maes to celebrate! I'll tell you the reason. I finally caught myself a man! Not any man, mind you, but the absolute male of my dreams, my own sweetie, Lil' Abner!

You see, this dance gave all of us girls the opportunity to ask the boy of our choice to an evening plumb full of excitement. The festivities began around 8:00 P.M. with plenty of toe-stomping music.

Abner tried to wiggle away and hide in a hay stack, but I held on tight and dragged him to Fort Hunt's own "Marrying Sam," Mr. Travis. He had us sign the marriage certificate, gave us each gold rings, and hitched us right on the spot! (Sealed with a kiss, of course!) The hoe-down lasted until midnight, and I declare, what a fun time we had!

So attention all you Fort Hunt gals who didn't get up the gumption this year: next year grab yourself a guy and sashay on over to where it's happenin'!

Getting hitched by our own Marrying Sam, Mr. John Travis, Michelle Gussie and Eric Lively exchange vows.

Making sure her Lil' Abner, Ralph Wood, doesn't run off, Liz Gray restrains him.

Showing that she's into the spirit of the dance, Amy Ensign masquerades as Daisy Mae.

Surprise Strikes the Fort

When you saw this layout, was your expression similar to the surprised faces on these pages? Surprise — the effect of what is unexpected — is a state of mind in which many Fort Hunt students can be found.

Along with the pains of school come the surprises — the food, the work, the grades. Occasionally the cafeteria will throw us a curve — “We get cupcakes?” or “What are you eating?” How many surprised faces did you see on the days when report cards came out? The work of school comes as a surprise, too, especially when it’s Sunday night and there’s a 500-word paper due Monday morning.

Good or bad, surprises are what make our lives interesting.

What We Do

Beyond the necessity of school and jobs, Fort Hunt students like most teens searched for various types of entertainment to break the routine. As each student is unique, so are his or her tastes in what constitutes a good time. Among these were watching tv, playing Pacman, or going to movies. Often heard rattling the halls was the phrase, "I saw the best movie!" or perhaps one heard on a Friday afternoon, "Fish Market, are we there?"

If one was determined enough, there was always something to do, even if it meant spending a Saturday night in various fast food places just eating and eating until finally it was time to go home.

Those who couldn't be bothered with trying to find something to go out and do enjoyed the comfort of their own home, reading a good book or listening to their favorite records.

So we've established that everyone enjoys entertainment; the question now is what kind of entertainment did F.H. students enjoy the most. The only way to find this out was to ask, of course. Thus the Fortress staff took a survey, and across the page are the answers.

Decisions, decisions, decisions, think Megan Fogarty and Lynn Templeman, as they decide what movie to see.

The Great Escape

The last few days before the winter break started were chaotic. Everywhere people were giving out Christmas cards with candy canes, decorating lockers, wearing green and red, and tying bells on their shoes. These signs reflected the seasonal spirits of all.

After the last class was over, students gave a sigh of relief and were ready for a change of scenery. Thoughts of school were left behind, and new activities filled the air. The Great Escape had begun.

The winter break was shorter than usual this year, but the weather was warm, and the spirits were high. Most of us spent time catching up on our sleep. The girls caught up on their soaps and the guys put on their shorts and kicked the football around with friends. Many students visited relatives or searched (usually in vain) for a good place to ski.

Federals welcomed 1983 with numerous New Year's Eve parties, and all wished winter break would never end.

We're Rakin' in the "Shmeez"

Why should a high school student get a job? The answers are as numerous and diverse as the Fort Hunt students who have them. Of course, employment offers a source of income, and this is probably the first reason teens look for jobs.

The rising costs of a college education, a car and just common everyday necessities constitute the areas where Feds are putting their hard earned salaries. Also, obtaining a job gives an individual a sense of responsibility, self esteem and pride.

A person who maintains a job is really gathering terrific and invaluable experience for the future. Explains Rita Puccia, who has worked at the Variety Store, "Having a job and earning a salary is really a nice feeling. I like being able to have money of my own and not having to beg from my parents."

Whatever their personal reasons are for choosing to go to work, teenagers everywhere are getting involved and Fort Hunt High School students are no exception.

"Please, does anyone have a kleenex?" implores Chucky Cheese (alias John Hammond) as he plays a video game.

"Beam me up, Mr. Spock," Joe Bambery seems to be saying as he lifeguards at Mt. Vernon Pool.

"All right, which one of you mashed the pizza into the Pac-Man game?" demands Chucky Cheese's Lisa Revere as she takes orders for a children's party.

Taking a break from counting inventory, Laura Harwell snatches a piece of candy.

"Ohmigod, I don't believe it! This item is eating my tee-shirt! Help . . ." exclaims a busy Cathy Serafin at Olde Towne's Christmas Attic.

"We're rakin' in the shmeez today," observes Brian Berry.

In the Spotlight

As we walk down the hallowed halls, we rarely suspect the talent hidden among us. We don't see the future writers, musicians, dancers, or athletes that we are to become. Some of us don't know what we want to be; others of us have a head start.

These talents may emerge in or away from school. The talent within us is developed by hours of hard work and sincere dedication. The inspiration to pursue a talent may come from something experienced in another country or from something as simple as singing in a church choir.

The spotlight now shines on five of Fort Hunt's talented students.

When Senior West Coile and Freshman Bonnie Coile say they're "going for the gold," they mean what they say! The brother and sister team plans to roller skate in future Olympic games.

Their hopes are realistic because the two have been skating together for five years; they have been Southeastern Regional Champions for four consecutive years. How did this interest in roller skating begin? It was their mother who first got them started, and they were further inspired when they went to Canada to watch the World Championships.

Because of an illness that kept Bonnie in the hospital for three months, they weren't able to skate last year, but they made a comeback by winning first place in Delaware this year. Good luck, and go for the gold, West and Bonnie!

If it is true that stars are born and not made, then Janice Reed is certainly a star. Now a sophomore, Janice has been singing since she was eight. Her talent began to show when she sang in her church choir.

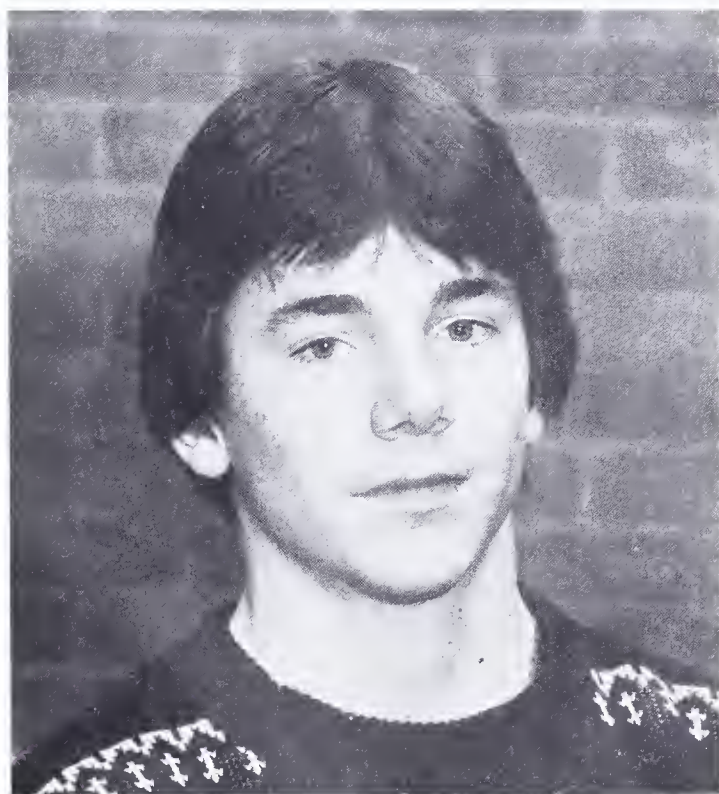

As with all stars, Janice has won her share of awards. They include a trophy from a T.C. Williams talent show as well as a prize for her performance in our own talent show. Before attending Fort Hunt, Janice went to the Duke Ellington School of the Arts.

Can we expect to see Janice on Broadway someday? You bet! But first she wants to attend the Juillard School of Performing Arts in New York. As one student said, "You don't know what singing is until you have heard Janice Reed."

Danny Bean, a Senior, is often seen pacing up and down the sidelines. He is not a player, nor a spectator, but a sportswriter. He has had a headstart on his journalistic career; for the past two years he has written a high school sports column for the Alexandria Gazette.

Bean's previous experience includes two years on Fort Hunt's Frontline with his column, "Bean's Bag." When Danny entered high school, he didn't want to be an athlete. What's the next best thing? Writing about athletes.

"I enjoyed covering my friends throughout high school. Since I can't be on the team, I can be with my friends through sports writing," Danny comments. He plans to attend a university with a good journalism school. We'll be looking for his byline.

With a flash of the tartan and a twirl of the kilt, Freshman Kristy Larson does the Highland Fling. She began at the age of twelve when she lived in Scotland. If you get as good as Kristy, you will surely win awards. The awards are grouped by levels, pre-bronze, bronze, silver, gold, gold bar, etc. She received congratulation cards, medals, certificates and she got up to the gold level before she left Scotland.

Kristy remarks, "I think Highland dancing was worth my time because I met lots of Scottish people and learned many Scottish customs. If I ever go back to Scotland, I think I might start dancing again." Kristy performed her unique skill at the talent show last November.

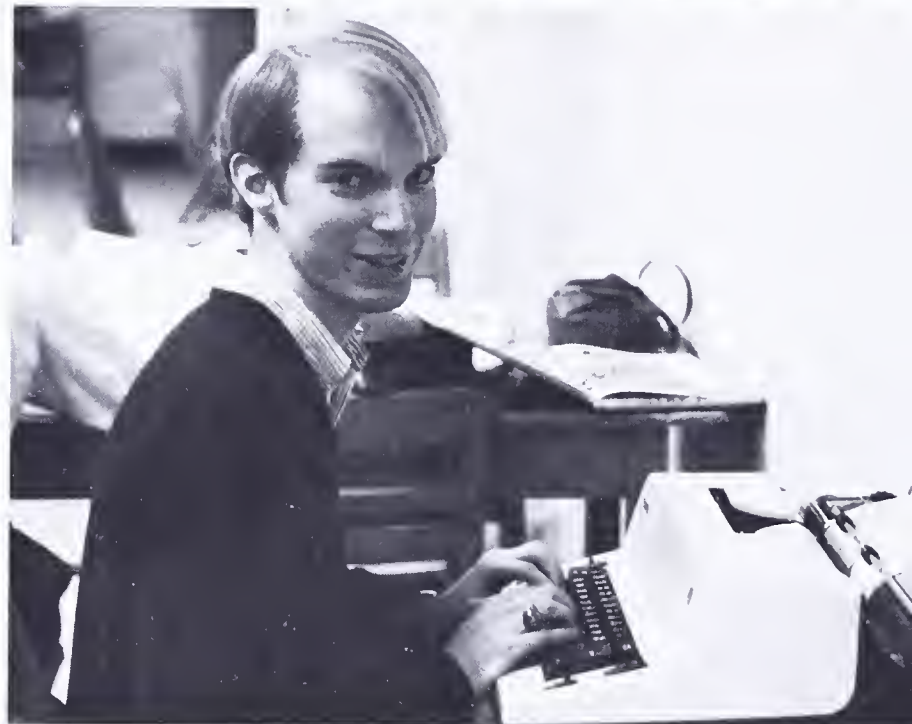

WE WANT YOU points John Redd, Senior Class President.

Almost forgetting to put his signature on a college application, Brendan Fogarty puts his John Hancock on the bottom line.

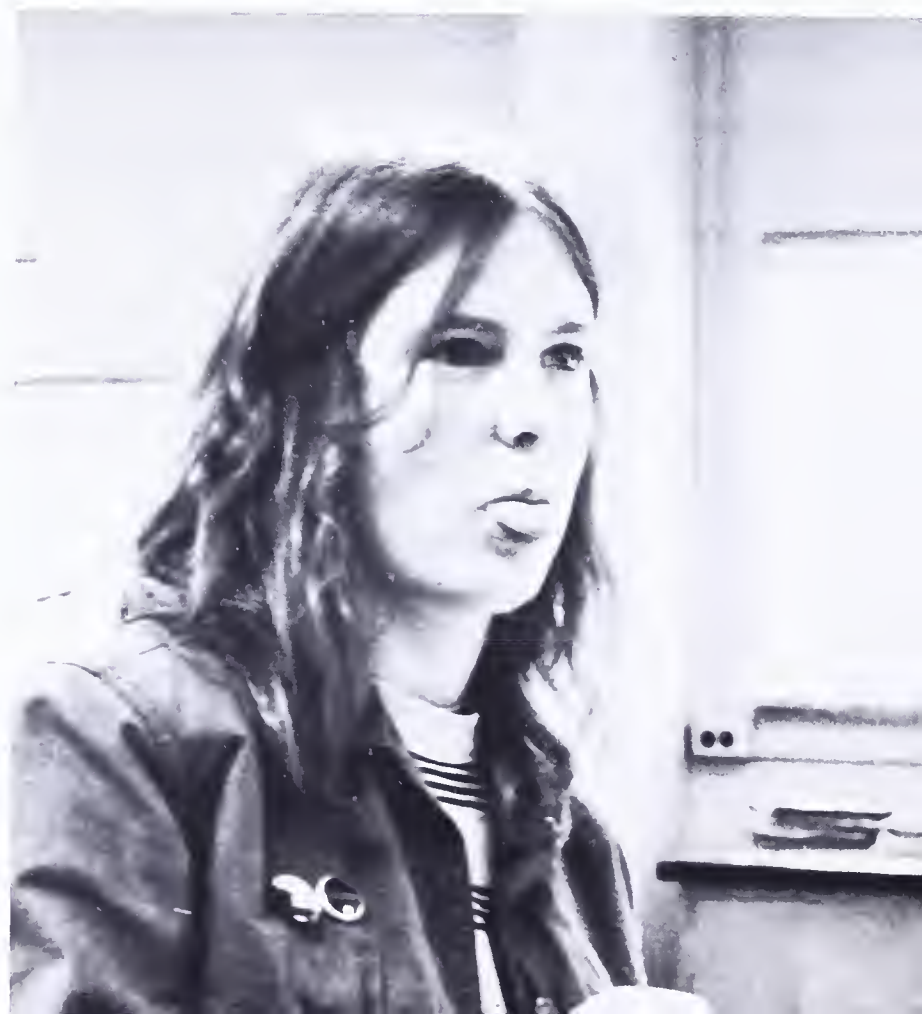

Relaxing in the Senior lounge, Danny Draucker begins to wonder if the school year will ever end.

Putting the last minute touches on his William and Mary application, Steve Templeman catches his breath.

Displaying her opinion, Amy Viar is more than verbal.

Seniors Tackle Their Futures

It seems that all high school students strive for the final attainment of becoming a Senior. In the beginning, Seniors enjoy the prestige of their status; they attend and throw creative parties, go "down town" to dance and have fun and generally flaunt their authority to all underclassmen.

However, being a senior does indeed carry great responsibilities. With the pressures of SAT'S, Achievements, transcripts and college applications, students are forced to buckle-down and work. The actual applications to be sent to the schools are long, tedious and mentally straining. Each applicant must be prepared to write thoughtful and articulate essays, list favorite activities and seek good recommendations from the principal, guidance counselor and teachers. It is only when everything has been signed, sealed and delivered, can the Seniors kick back.

Many Seniors also find themselves busy with a job, or the start of their career. Through many shared experiences and a feeling of nostalgia, the Seniors begin to come together as a group.

As many Seniors find themselves doing, Melissa McElheny daydreams about where she'll be next year.

Finding Karen Gahart and Janet Cleary's request for a recommendation humorous, Mr. Cabelus wonders what he can "recommend."

Deciding that her class rank and G.P.A. are confidential, Beth Privateer keeps them to herself.

There is More to a Year . . .

What is a year? Yes, a year is made up of 365 days and yes it does have 12 months but is there more? For most of us, days are filled with tedious work, whether it be school work, or occupational work; those days drift along with the routine, and fall into years.

When one is young, these years seem too long. We all remember asking — How much longer is it until I'm grown up? Once we are grown a bit more, a young adult, time goes progressively quicker. We become more aware of the life outside of our family.

Things begin to fall into perspective.

So, yes, there is much more to a year than just dreary days, one after the other. Each day is different from the next as well as different for each person. History is made by these days that slowly grow into years. Each year has a little something to offer those newspapers or history books. Perhaps one day you will give a thought to all the history you have lived through.

A view of the Fort in the early 1970's, before reconstruction.

A skier takes advantage of the 18 inch snowfall along the tow path in Georgetown.

Blizzard of '83

When 18 inches of snow dropped on us in early February, it was the biggest and worst snowstorm in four years. It meant drudgery for some, but fun for most. After driveways and sidewalks were shoveled, many anxious Federals headed for Mt. Vernon hill for hours of sledding, snowball fights, snowman building and getting together with friends. Others took this time to catch up on some much needed sleep.

Most students weren't ready to come back to school after an unexpected three day vacation, but two days of delayed openings seemed to ease the pain!

Allentown U.S.A.

This year brought difficult economic times for many. Although the inflation rate fell, the unemployment rate rose to over 10%, the highest since World War II. Economic forecasts expressed both optimistic and pessimistic viewpoints.

Memco and Woolco went out of business, a symbol of the tough times many businesses were experiencing. Billy Joel's hit song, "Allentown," about the closing of steel mills, the unemployed in Allentown, PA, effectively expressed the disillusion felt by many.

All facets of the economy were bad, however. Fortunately, for wallets and our gas tanks, the price of gas steadily decreased as the oil price grew. Interest rates fell, stimulating the auto and housing industries well.

Fort Fashion

This year, fashion at the Fort was very diverse and quite individual. Although the classic styles were always visible, they were updated with new accessories such as jean jackets, flat suede boots, bandanas, and colored tights. Some choose new styles with mini skirts, camouflage pants, "vans" (shoes), and sweatshirt leotards. There were also a few "punk" hairstyles which cropped up.

Like many others this year, Megan M. wears the popular Levis Jean Jacket.

Who?

The Who played an electrifying farewell tour, leaving the stage in style. Peter Townshend, who has supplied The Who with "dance songs" for 20 years, entertained a capacity crowd with powerful rhythm and stylish lead guitar, windmill strokes, amazing leaps, and even a bit of auto-destructive art.

Roger Daltrey danced about singing and jamming on harmonica, while "rabbit" Bundrick hid behind his well-played keyboards, all supported by a solid rhythm section of Kenny Jones and John Entwistle's amazing bass lines.

The Who has built a great reputation for power and communication with their fans. Their fans, getting this rare opportunity to "join together with the band," were hypnotized by the group's intense energy, the Capitol Centre hummed with this electricity.

Getting good use out of her purchase at the Concert, Kendra Allman wears her "Who" sweat-shirt.

THANKS . . .

The Fortress staff would like to thank Sera Vogelsinger, for her help with some photography, Amy Olds for her cartoon work and Grant Nordwell and Brian Berry for their knowledge on The Who.

The Washington Redskins Take Superbowl

The beginning of the 1982-83 NFL season seemed rather grim due to the players' strike. Many wondered if there would even be a season. The loyal Redskins fans, however, stood by their team, and it paid off with the Super Bowl XVII victory!

After the Skins beat the team from Texas (I believe it was Dallas), Washington fans went crazy. The Redskins, now holding the NFC championship, were ready for the Super Bowl. Their opponents were the Miami Dolphins. It was an exciting game, yet taken easily by the Redskins — final score 27-17. Fort Hunt students and Skins fans were ecstatic. The streets of Georgetown filled with these partying fans.

A parade in honor of the victory followed the players' arrival in Washington. It took place on a rainy Wednesday down Constitution Avenue. Despite the weather, the parade was attended by over half of the student body, excused by the county with a note from Mom and Dad.

M*A*S*H

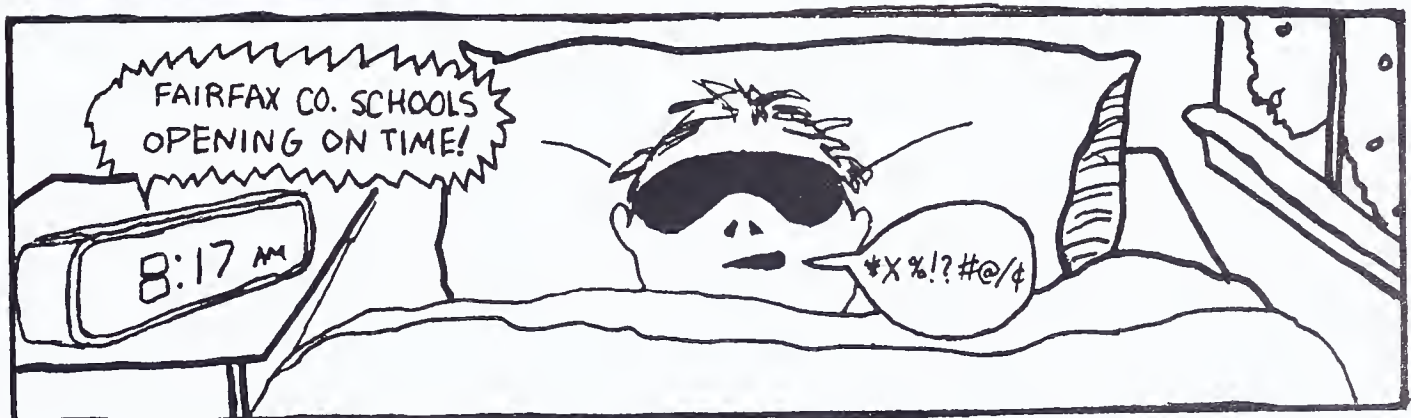

After eleven years and more than 250 episodes the T.V. series MASH came to an end. February 28, 1983 marked the end of the Korean War for the cast of MASH. The 2½ hour show was the most watched T.V. show in history.

Parties were thrown so friends could share the last MASH together. Fort Hunt students also got into the spirit by decking out in fatigues and MASH T-shirts, for a "last MASH bash."

In his camouflage pants, Jimmy Harvy makes plans for his "last Mash Bash."

Saluting the end of M*A*S*H, Chris Schell, ing respectfully wears his T-shirt.

We all have heard it for what seems like a million times: "There will be a meeting of Club X at 2:30 in Room 000." Immediately we've thought to ourselves, "Not another meeting! We just had one last week." Trying to attend all meetings was next to impossible (especially when we had five at the same time in different places), but we did our best . . . usually.

Fortunately, club members do not live on meetings alone. There were activities that took us to many places, fundraisers when we ate more candy than we sold, and, of course, the overnight trips that some of us will never forget and others will never remember.

The organizations we belonged to covered a broad area: Language, Service, Student Government, Special Interests, etc. This year some organizations were new, and others were as old as the school itself. Whether we realized it or not, we all benefited from the experience of being members.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Hard Work Pays Off

The 1982-83 Student Government officers showed great enthusiasm as they started off in the summer repainting and redecorating the student government office and outfitting the senior lounge.

All seven officers continued their hard work throughout the year as they organized the Back to School Dance, the Leadership Conference, Spirit Week, the Homecoming parade, halftime show, and the dance.

The Magazine Drive, also sponsored by Student Government, was successful, and with the large profit derived, donations were made to the Crew Club and to the Athletic Department to help offset its deficit. They also provided a free Computer Dating Dance for the entire student body.

The Student Advisory Council started out the year with Mike Novogratz, the Area I chairman, being the only returning member. The group of five members gather each month for one area meeting and one county meeting to discuss problems in the school system. Sponsored by Ms. Stansbery and Mr. Travis, SG and SAC accomplished a great deal for the benefit of all FH students.

With the help of Dawn Berthea, Liz Chamberlain and Jenni Bowker put up the calendar.

KEY-KEYETTES

Keys Service With a Smile

The Key Club and Keyettes have been very active this year. The Key Club, sponsored by Mr. John Shortridge put on a Homecoming bonfire and this Christmas sold Christmas trees with the Booster Club. Both clubs worked together on the Red Cross blood drive. The Keyettes, sponsored by Mr. Marty Bonnett, their new sponsor, were very busy this year. They worked at Oak Meadows every month and collected for the March of Dimes in January. They also participated in a Walk-a-thon for Diabetes and a candy sale to raise money for the club. Both service clubs helped the community immensely.

Clubs Serve Community

The service clubs Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y had a large turnout for the 1982-83 school and community activities. Tri-Hi-Y sponsored the spirit chain during Homecoming week and continued in their fundraising by selling calendars and sponsoring Halloween Day. Hi-Y held car washes and donut sales as fundraisers.

Both clubs sponsored candy sales throughout the year and participated in the holiday festivities by giving the students an opportunity to have their picture taken with Santa Claus, a disguised Hi-Y member. Tri-Hi-Y contributed to a Thanksgiving and Holiday food basket which went to an underprivileged family. Hi-Y participated in a fundraiser for the March of Dimes.

At a meeting, BCA sponsor Mrs. Driggins and Yasemin Washington think of services to do for the school.

BCA, Civitans Give Service

The Junior Civitans had another outstanding year. The club participated in many service projects that benefited the school and community. Being one of the school's service clubs, the 15 member group had bake sales and candy sales to raise money. They also donated money to community groups such as the Salvation Army.

The club met every week, and once a year the members attended a regional meeting where Junior Civitan groups from all over the country met and discussed what services they render.

The Black Cultural Alliance was one of Fort Hunt's many service clubs. With their sponsor, Mrs. Driggins, the twenty-seven member club was active making holiday baskets of food for needy families in the area. They also set up tutoring sessions for elementary age children.

The group sponsored their share of school fund-raisers. For Halloween, they sold Monster-Grams, and had candy sales throughout the year. They met every other Wednesday all year discussing school events, fund-raisers and community projects.

Club members Tomika Bell and Felicia Jones listen to some ideas from Mrs. Driggins.

Flashing a sweet smile, Aisha Davis approves of BCA's new idea.

Clubs Help Future Goals

Two active special interest clubs in our school are DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) and FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America).

DECA, part of CO-OP — an opportunity to go to school and get credit for working, studied marketing trends. It participated in several field trips to Reading, Penn.; New York City and Richmond. This club includes students who are looking towards the future. The successful talent show was sponsored by DECA again this year.

FBLA also consists of students interested in their future. It includes prospective business executives. Students involved in the business department may also receive credit for working and going to school, but that is part of COE instead of CO-OP. This year, for Christmas, FBLA donated some money to CREW and started collecting items for the Children's Hospital.

FRENCH — SPANISH CLUBS

Foreign Clubs Más Actives

Two benefits of knowing a foreign language are the French and Spanish Clubs. These organizations kept busy by participation in the foreign language soccer tournament, decoration of halls for Homecoming, candy sales, bake sales, and holiday parties.

The Spanish Club was also the sponsor for a group of selected students who attended the Organization of American States. As part of their service to the community, the French Club donated money earned from a bake sale to crew. As one can see, the 82-83 year was certainly an active one for these clubs' members.

LATIN-GERMAN CLUBS

Two Clubs, Very Active

In 1982-83 the German Club proved to be the most active again. Starting early with a trip to Bush Gardens in the fall, the club scheduled many activities including German Week and a Fashings celebration. The club's sponsor is Frau McIver and president is Mimi Engel. Also throughout the year the club participated in soccer games between other languages and other schools. The club also organized pizza and ice skating parties and several gummie bear sales. In the summer they plan to take a trip to Germany.

Another club equally as active was the Latin Club who participated in Latin Bowls and soccer games against other languages. The club gained regional acclaim in the Virginia Junior Classical League and won several trophies in the Latin Bowls. The club is sponsored by Jane Hall and the president is Young Ra. The club is planning a trip to Europe.

SAC-ASTRONOMY CLUB ACADEMY OF SCIENCE

Discussing the threat of Communism, Paul Jamison and Mr. Phelps of the Students Against Communism get their point across.

Members of the Astronomy Club chart the paths of the stars in the Planetarium.

When the yearbook staff asked Paul Jamison, president of Students Against Communism, what inspired him to start the original club, he replied, "To inform and educate students about the threat of Communism in the United States and abroad; we want people to feel a sense of security and to know that there are people who care about this threat of Communism."

The club has gained much success and support due to the interest and involvement of many concerned students. Mr. Phelps, the sponsor, has also contributed much time and effort.

showing their true patriotic feelings, president Paul Jamison, Anthony Royer, and Todd Dibell lead their club in the pledge of allegiance.

Clubs Appeal to a Variety of Interests

Since the Astronomy Club is not a service club, it does not directly affect the school and community. However, this club has been offering students the chance to learn about astronomy and ask many questions. In this manner the club has made an impact on many members.

"In addition to learning many facts about stars and planets, I have had the privilege this year to lead the club and give lectures. I have gained much from the club," states president Mike Dye. Mrs. Henning, a very effective sponsor, is always prepared with movies and slides to help the club members understand more about the world of the stars.

The Academy of Science has given many students the opportunity to further their knowledge in Science and to use the equipment necessary to do research and experiments different from those done in class. For those who were interested in the physical sciences and enjoyed independent work, the Academy of Science was very beneficial.

While observing the heavenly bodies, Astronomy Club members smile at the many wonders.

as Liz Chamberlain expresses her frustration, Stacy Hickman plows through the messy drawer for what she needs.

Staying Sane Inside Insanity

"47 pages due in 3 days?! But we only have 4 done!" "Where are those pictures?" "The copy was never written?" "What do you mean the layout was 'accidentally' thrown away??" "If I see anymore yearbook stuff, I'm gonna be sick!" "I can't take it — I'm leaving!" "Is all this really worth it??"

Although these cries may not be familiar to you, to the Fortress staff they were everyday crises. It took a great deal of effort to have put together a project as big as this and tension was just part of the job. Deadline pressure was always hanging over our heads, and no matter how much work we finished, there always seemed twice as much in the corner waiting for completion.

The long hours and loads of paperwork were enough to drive us all crazy. Stupid jokes, tears, funny faces, music, and even a scream or two were common ways to release the frustration felt by all.

Somehow, with some help from our sponsor, Mr. Kenneth Craddock, and editor-in-chief, Steve Templeman, Fortress '83 came together. We pulled each other out of the sea of layouts, pictures, and copies to produce a well, semi-sane yearbook.

And yes, it was all worth it!

Examining her layout, Marianna Lancaster gives a small smile as she knows she's almost done.

Making sure all is correct, Mr. Craddock looks over Missy Cohen's layout.

Student Views Given Voice

A worthy publication should be informative and interesting, which is no easy job. However, with lots of work and dedication, this can be accomplished as seen by The Frontline and Déjà-Vu.

After selling subscriptions early in the year, The Frontline printed numerous editions in a new, more professional style. With its object to become a true student voice, the paper created an impact with its articles on drugs, alcohol, and other student problems. It went beyond just reporting the issues; it told the impact of these issues on individual students.

If you were more interested in reading an exciting short story, Déjà-Vu was more your style. With the numerous samples of writing, the magazine evolved into a showcase for students' literary works. After inserting a sample of the magazine in The Frontline, Déjà-Vu took off with an issue of its own. This optimistic regeneration of the periodical gave creative Federals a forum for expression.

Making some last-minute corrections, Brendan Fogarty readies his story for printing.

Seeing Mrs. Johnson and Thea Sarro's reaction to his latest story idea, Vince Haley decides to change his lead.

Clubs Care About Safety

Every year, tens of thousands of people die in automobile accidents caused by drunk driving. Students Against Drunk Driving and Safety Club council are organizations with an objective to educate students about the dangers of driving, especially drunk driving. With the help of speaker Kevin Tunnell, a convicted drunk driver, simulated cars, and informative posters, these clubs showed students the real tragedies caused by senseless thinking. Hopefully with SADD and Safety Club's caring, the number of deaths caused by drunk driving will be lowered in this area.

Clubs Ready Students for Real World

The Fashion Merchandising class is part of the work-studies program enabling students to earn credits by working. This year, for the first time two males were in the class. Students study marketing trends and the year is highlighted by trips to factory outlets in Reading, PA., a three day trip to New York City's garment district and to Richmond to textile factories. They also held a fashion show.

H.E.R.O., Home Economics Related Occupations, includes child development classes which observe and study the growth of children in their classes. The club went to Williamsburg in the spring, and also participated in such fund raisers as the Mother's March of Dimes.

Orchestra's Excellence Continuing

Once again, under the direction of Mrs. Marilyn Schwaner, the Fort Hunt Orchestra was a musical success. The musicians played every morning, and they gathered together for nightly practice sessions as well. Their hard work and dedication certainly paid off. On March 12, the orchestra traveled to T.C. Williams High School to perform in the District X and XII Orchestra Festival. The orchestra was also selected to play in Boston for the International Competition in late April.

The members of the String Quartet have been keeping busy this year. They hired themselves out to play at special events like weddings and private parties. Violinists Raelene Canuel and Jennifer Swift have been playing together for two years. They combine talents with Wayne Mehl and David Oh to achieve fine musical performances.

MARCHING BAND-FLAG CORPS

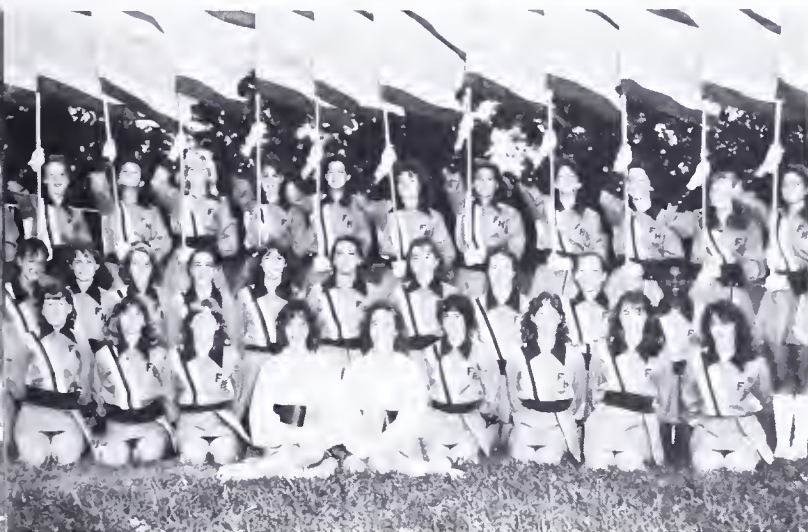

Takin' It To the Top

Once again the Fort Hunt Marching Federals can look back on their accomplishments with much pride and many smiles. To begin their competing season, the band and flag corps traveled down to Lynchburg, Va. to go up against seven other excellent bands. Because Fort Hunt was a newcomer to the Lynchburg Competition, the local crowd was surprised that our band walked off so well: first place brass, first place woodwind, second place flag corps and second place overall.

On the evening of the Homecoming Dance, the destination was Falls Church where the band and flag corps performed so well that even Lake Braddock was left speechless; needless to say, Fort Hunt marched out with first place. A few weeks later Fort Hunt was presented with a plaque stating that they were the first Virginia band to ever win first place at the Falls Church Competition.

To finish off their winning season, the Marching Federals went to the Richmond Competition where they got their chance to perform against Mount Vernon for the first time in several years. Not only did the auxiliaries take second and the band come in first in their class division, but also, point-wise, they won over the larger bands.

With a lot of high hopes, good feelings and inspiration from Mr. George Etheridge, the band and flag corps plan to do even better next season.

During another, yes another, after school band practice, the drum line goes through more tedious fundamentals. Hup-hup-hip-hoe!

At the Richmond Competition the band performs superbly and therefore marches off with first place.

Bands Keep Makin' Music

This year the band tried something new by inviting all the alumni back to play a few pieces in the Mid-Winter Concert.

Other activities included competitions at the Regional District Festival and at the University of Maryland. The most exciting activity was the six day May trip to Montreal, Canada for another competition. Also in Montreal was an indoor auxiliary competition where twenty of the girls on the Fort Hunt Flag Corps participated.

On behalf of the marching band and flag corps, Mr. George Etheridge gracefully accepts the award given by Mr. William J. Burkholder, Superintendent of Fairfax Co. Schools, and Mr. Gerald A. Fill, Mr. Vernon District School Board member, for an outstanding competing season.

Trying one last time before a concert, Matt Irwin attempts to perfect his tone.

CHOIRS

Vocal Groups Make Music

Just for the pure love of singing is why most people are in the chorus, concert, and chamber choirs. During the year these groups perform at concerts, shows, and at fund raisers. As one chorus member said, "Being in chorus not only enables you to sing, but also to meet new people and share in new experiences. It certainly has been worth my time!"

Along with the other singing groups, a new group called the 'show choir', was formed for the first time this year. Seventeen members auditioned and practiced weekly on jazz and Broadway pieces from popular plays.

Practicing on their pieces, the Concert Choir works things out together

Finding some amusing words in a song, members of the choir laugh with each other.

MADRIGALS

Singing in perfect harmony, the Madrigals practice for an upcoming performance.

Seeking a quiet spot, Susan Dye has private conversation.

Voices Ring Fort's Halls

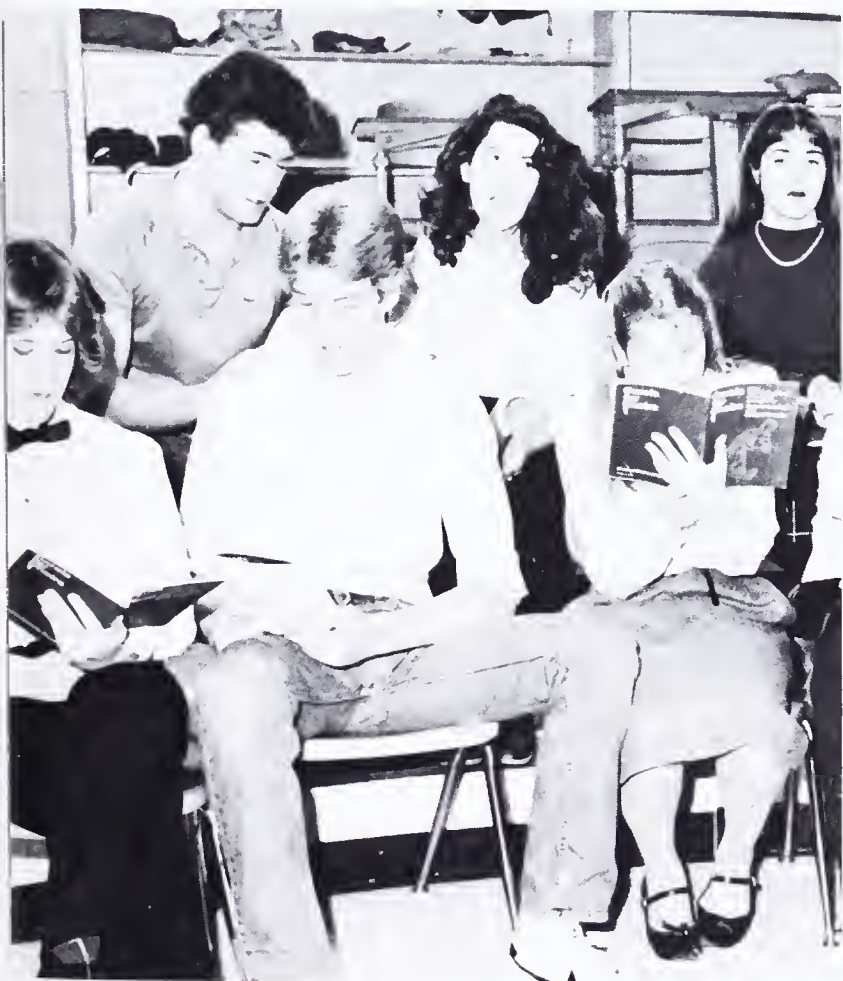

Among the most active groups in the school the Madrigals must be included. These gifted singers definitely kept busy with concerts, competitions, the yearly festival, and (for the first year) singing telegrams called "Madrigrams."

The Madrigals certainly are worthy of the praise given to them, for they practiced during their class period and had 2½ to 3 hour rehearsals during the week.

The Madrigals were made-up of sixteen hardworking sophomores, juniors, and seniors who have had at least a year of professional training.

Some of their major activities during the year were: The Madrigal Dinner, Christmas performances, Spring concert, and the first annual Renaissance Festival.

Having his cheek pinched makes Joe Bambery overjoyed.

Practicing for a Christmas concert, the Madrigals sing with enthusiasm.

Spying the irresistible food, Kathy Bolte joins the Madrigals on their lunch break.

Students Garner Honors

Another kind of leaders who shares the spotlight with the athletes is the academic achievers. These honor students must pass rigid acceptance rules in order to receive admission to an honor society. Not only do they uphold their scholastic record, these groups participate in many activities.

The National Honor Society sponsored scholarships, a toga dance, as well as a dinner for new students. The Language Honor Societies provided free tutoring service and sponsored several collegiate contests as well.

Truly, these students deserve a place of honor.

Organizations Get Away

"Vacation, all I ever wanted, vacation, have to get away . . ." Every time the weekend or a holiday comes around, these lyrics come to everyone's mind. Winter Vacation and Spring Break are the most popular times when ski bunnies hit the slopes and beach bums ride the waves.

Not only does "Vacation Fever" attack individuals, but also organizations. They catch this fever to a higher degree because (as everyone knows) it's more fun to go anywhere with a group.

This year, Fort Hunt's organizations have been keeping the local travel agents very busy. The Latin club toured New York as well as the Fashion Merchandising class. Junior Civitans held their annual convention at Ocean City. The French Club journeyed to Quebec, Canada, while the German Club also added to the list making its tour of Pennsylvania.

For competitions, the Marching Band went to Lynchburg and Richmond, Va. and the Symphonic Band and the Flag Corps voyaged to Montreal.

For individuals, trips to Spain, France, and Italy were available through the language department and many took the advantage. Skiers grabbed every opportunity to show their talent at Liberty, Wintergreen and the like.

Whether skiing or lying on the beach, the reason for vacation is the same: to get away from the pressures of everyday life. So when the fever attacks, take two aspirin and call me in the morning, or whenever you get back.

It's better in the Bahamas as shown by Paradise Beach, Paradise Island.

The famed Golden Gate Bridge stands clearly out over the San Francisco Bay.

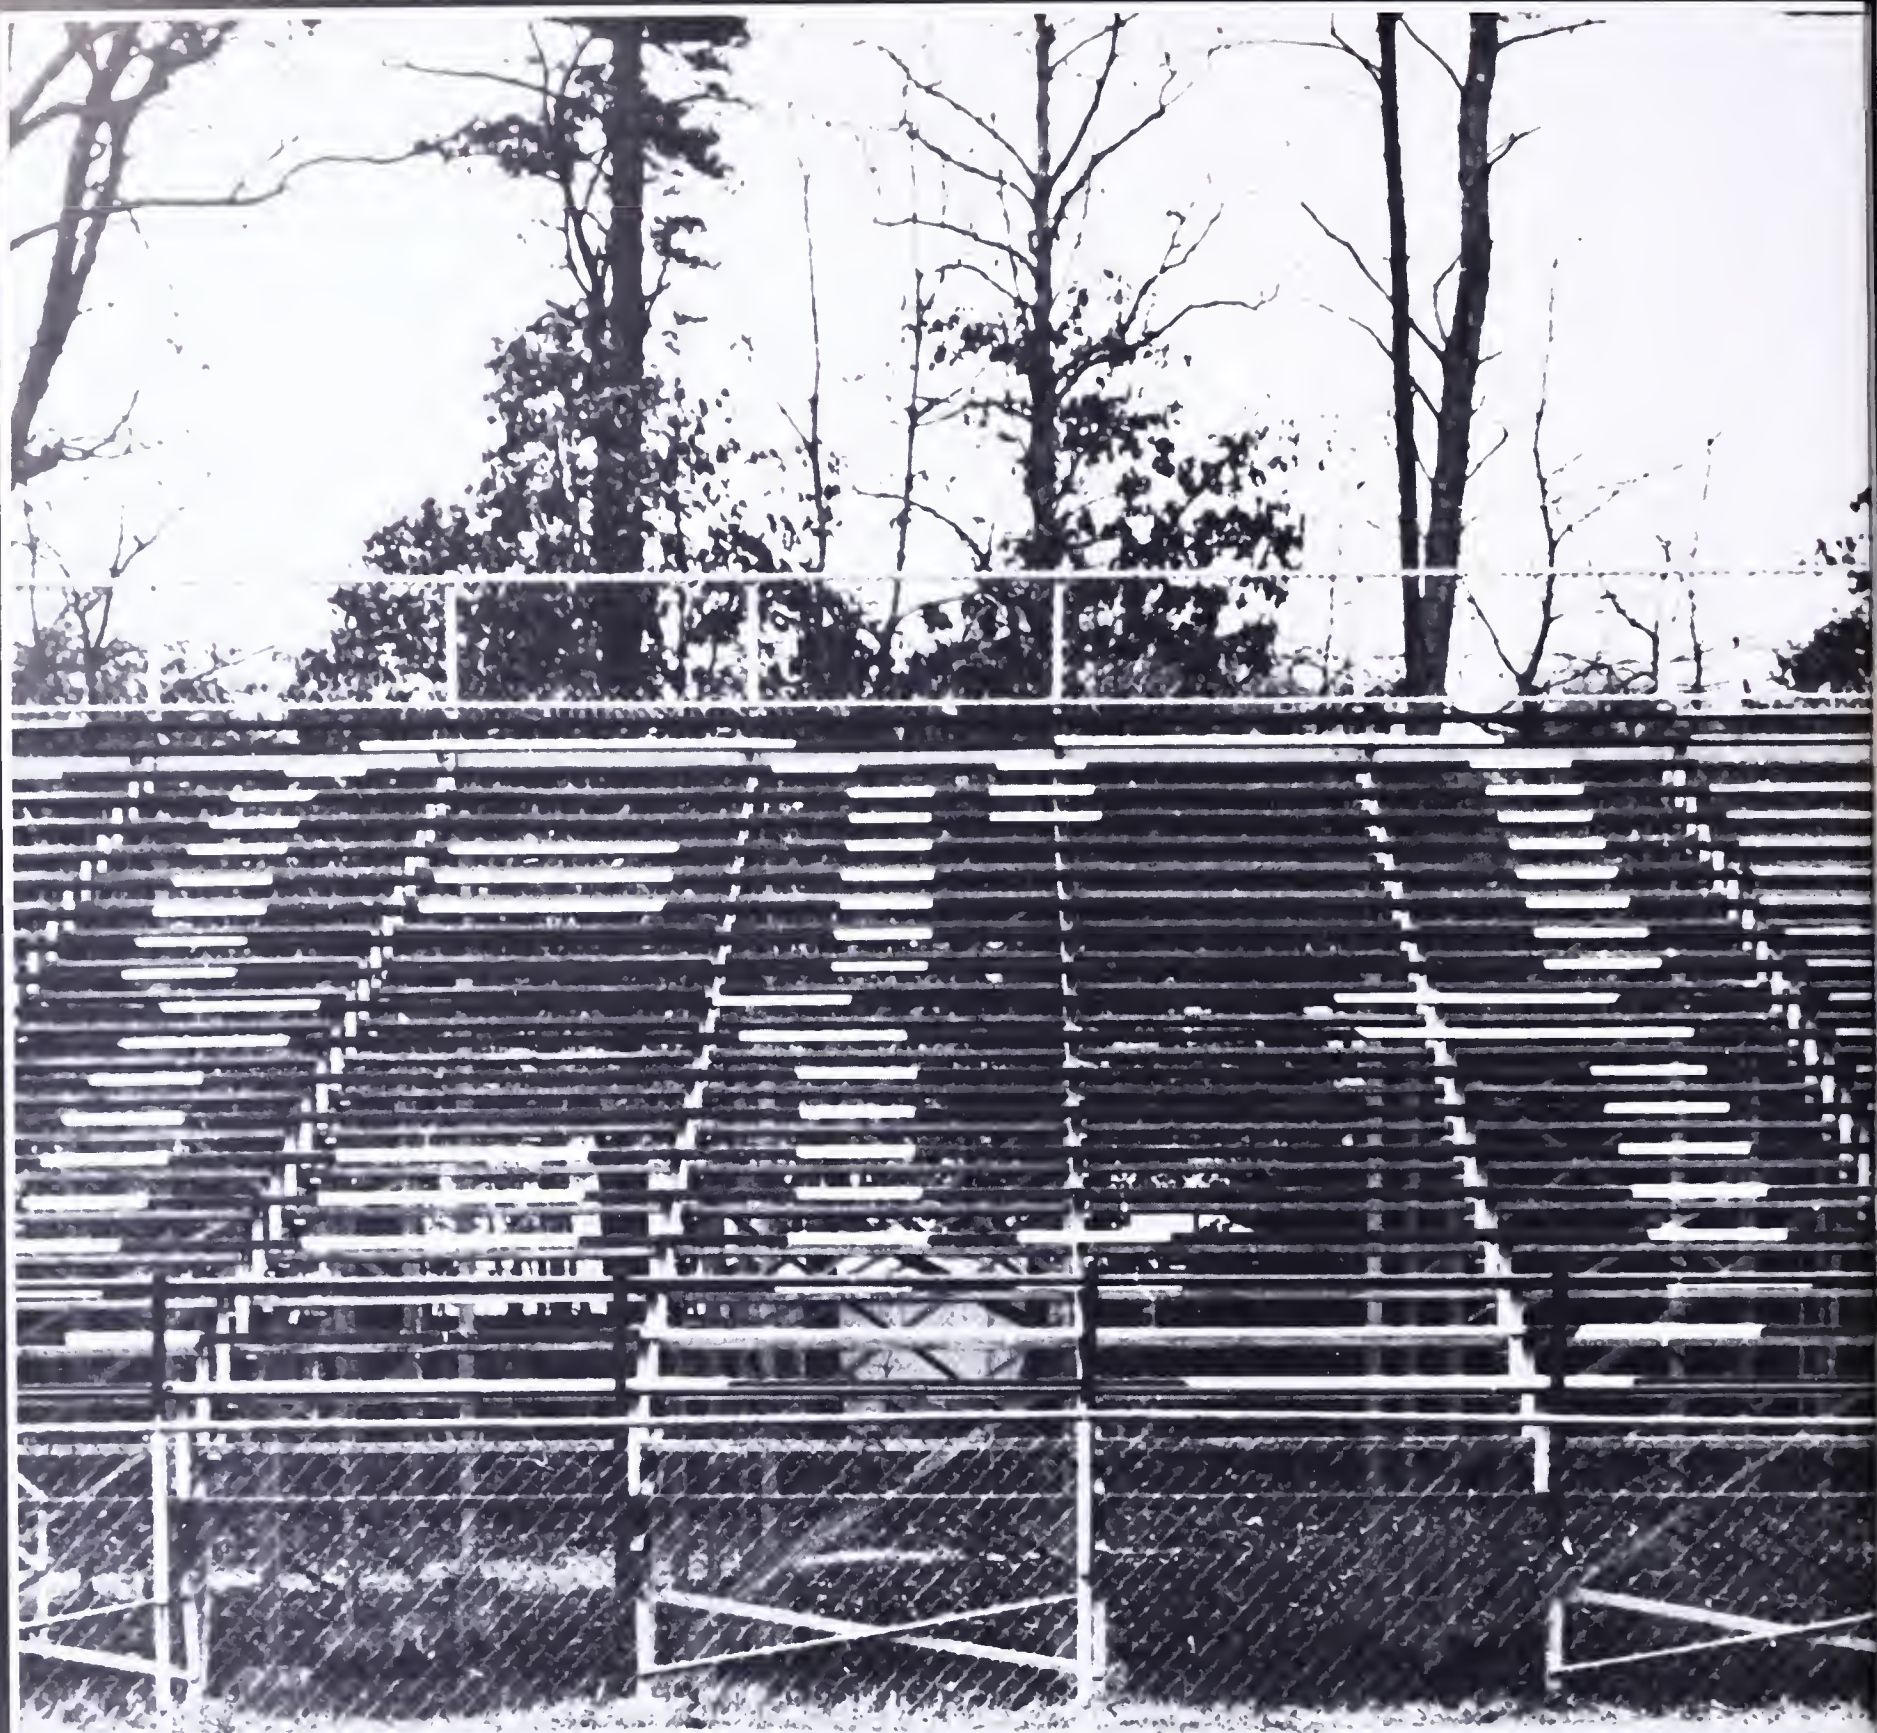

'83, '84, '85, '86 . . . We all belong to a certain class. It is what we have in common with some, and what sets up apart from others.

Throughout the year, class rivalry was a fact of life. From sitting in separate areas at pep rallies to taking different level courses and sitting (or not sitting) in the Junior/Senior cafeteria, there was always a sense of class identity.

At times class rivalry was taken to extremes, but more often Federals broke the invisible class barriers to make friends with members of other classes.

Looks Like We've Made It . . .

Class Officers Steer Activities

This year's senior officers, President John Redd, 1st Vice-President Aisha Davis, 2nd Vice-President Greg Ellis, Secretary Mary Coughlin, Treasurer Bronwyn Smith and George Hamel, their sponsor, did a great job of holding down the Fort.

To raise money the Sadie Hawkins and Sweetheart dances were held, both great successes. The class of 1983 thanks these officers for making their senior year a good one!

Senior Spirit Shines Through

The minute the Class of '82 graduated, "We're seniors!" was already being yelled from the Class of '83. Dress-up days were put into effect the first week of the new school year featuring Senior Punk Day, Senior Beach Day, and Senior 50's Day!

We Seniors continued to show our spirit throughout Homecoming week, the Powderpuff game, pep rallies, and various sports activities. Sticking together through the hard work and the fun, we formed a close bunch . . . the CLASS OF '83!

College Boards Plague Seniors

As senior year approaches, each Fort Hunt student is forced to analyze what life holds in store after the finish of high school. For many the answer is, of course, college. Thus, on various Saturday mornings last autumn and winter, many Feds found themselves taking one of the dreaded College-Board Tests, such as the SAT, ACT, or Achievement Test.

Because of the extreme pressures placed on seniors seeking admissions to competitive schools, prep courses for these exams and late-night studying sessions were rampant. Extremely long and tedious, the tests covered obscure vocabulary and mathematical problems in one stressful three-hour period.

Sighed college-bound Janet Cleary after her last testing session, "I can't wait to get out of here and go home to sleep!"

While looking at the booklet, Jenny Dugan and Kim Crandall are amused at the thought of taking ACTs.

Senior Beauties Vie for Title

When the Homecoming Parade made its way down Waynewood Boulevard last October, the class of 1983 had every reason to be proud of its three Princess representatives: Jenny Howay, Bronwyn Smith and Joni Takane.

As members of activities such as Varsity Cheerleading, National Honor Society, The Fortress, Class Government and Varsity Soccer, Track and Gymnastics, the girls were chosen for such qualities as leadership, Fort Hunt involvement and for being the wonderful girls that the class of 1983 is proud to call their own.

Seniors Daily Escape to Macs

Senior priority does have some definite advantages, one being the right to escape at lunchtime to the ever-popular MacDonalds. Flaunting their new-found status, gangs of Fort Hunt Seniors could be seen every day around noon making a run for it to the school parking lot where their cars awaited.

Although always facing the chance of being caught by a stalking administrator, most Seniors echoed the opinion of Kurt Blackwell that the jaunt to "Mac's" was always . . . "worth the risk."

In deep thought, Tom Zirps tries to decide whether to eat his usual lunch or make a quick run to Mac's.

Lounge Offers New Sr. Hangout

Over the summer the student lounge was repainted, carpeted, furnished, and so was established the "Senior Lounge!" Being one of the few privileges of the Senior Class, all underclassmen knew not to enter the premises unless accompanied by a senior, (which was rare). Upon entering, such things as gossiping, laughing and often intense studying were seen. It was a fun place to be with friends and as the final bell rang to end the lunch shift, many would say: "I could stay here all day" . . . and some did!

Taking advantage of the senior lounge, Mike Boorum and Billy Cunningham catch up on the latest gossip.

Senior Picnic New Addition

Held at picturesque Riverside Park by the Potomac River, on Friday, November 5, 1982, Fort Hunt's last football game Spirit Picnic was a definite success. Enthusiastic Federal fans gathered at the grounds at 12:30 p.m., complete with food, frisbees, radios and footballs.

As Feds laughed, gossiped and played games under the cloudless sky, new friendships were made and spirits raised for the all-important game against Robert E. Lee High School.

Said senior Robin Blunt, "The picnic was great; it brought everyone together to support the team."

Hard Work, Fun That's a Senior

"I can't wait to get out of here!" Sound familiar?! This year has been one of the hardest and most aggravating years of high school. But despite all of the hustle and bustle of grades and college applications, many good times which will never be forgotten have been shared. Well, we made it . . . the time has come to say good-bye to the "Fort" and there are many mixed emotions. Juniors Face an Upperclass World

Many of the problems we faced as freshmen and sophomores are now gone, like being accepted, fearing the wrath of upperclassmen, and going to homecoming. Now we are the upperclassmen, and the majority of us have our licenses. Now, as Juniors, we face new problems such as who to take to prom, which car to take (should I use the family car?), and where is all the money going to come from?

At the time that these problems occurred they may have seemed to be major crises, but we got through them all. Just think, next year we will face a whole new world of problems.

84 Shows Spirit in Homecoming

Even though the Homecoming theme of the 1960's was not the most popular, the Junior class showed an abundance of enthusiasm during the traditional "Spirit Week." Not only did the class sponsor "Twin Day," but it was the winner of "60's Day," with Sam Russell voted best dressed. Juniors also showed spirit by participating in "Pajama Day," and "Party Day."

Tina Mayola's garage was again volunteered to work on the float, "Yellow Submarine." Even though many felt the students were not the most spirited this year, there are still some who felt that they will always remember their junior year in high school and no one can take the memories away from them.

Tough Junior Year

A major consensus is that the junior year is the hardest in high school. "It's really tough," said Susie Burnette. This was also discovered by many others of the class of 1984.

Primarily our problem was accepting the many responsibilities and requirements of being upperclassmen. We had to take on the PSAT's, SAT's, and other college board tests. The future was looming ahead of us and so much closer than we could believe. Juniors had to start making decisions about colleges, majors and/or jobs.

Caught thinking about her multitude of men, Cathy Gray remembers last weekend.

Cruisin' Becomes Weekend Status

Although many people say their junior year is their toughest, the benefits can far outweigh the detriments. For example, juniors have their licenses so they do not have to rely on rides from their friends or, even worse, their parents. Cruising becomes a pastime on weekends and driving to school a status.

Every junior now has the right to be called an upperclassman, complete with the privileges of eating in the junior-senior cafeteria and picking on the underclassmen. Rings decorate the fingers of many juniors stirring up thoughts of the upcoming senior year.

Junior Officers Plan Fund Raisers

This year's Junior Class Officers were all elected to their posts for the first time. What they lacked in experience they made for in enthusiasm. Keith Blackwell, president; Hector Negroni, vice president; Stephanie Meuse, secretary; and Tracy Maness, treasurer used innovative ideas to get greater participation in class projects. During the summer, they combined work with pleasure to raise money to have a Junior Class party. The Junior Class continued to work all year long to raise money for the prom by having bake sales and car washes. "Enthusiasm amongst the class is growing," says the president.

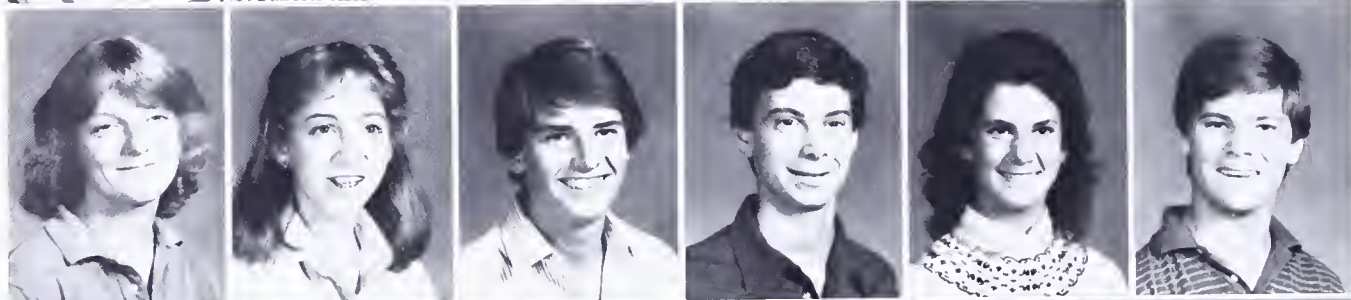

Hector Negroni, Vice President, Tracy Maness, Treasurer, Stephanie Meuse, Secretary, and Keith Blackwell, President, take off in Steph's car.

Although stuck between the immaturity of many Freshmen and the authority of the much wiser Juniors and Seniors, most of the Sophomore Class managed to have their fair share of fun throughout the year.

The Class of '85 may still have been known as "underclassmen," but being a "Soph" did have a few advantages. Of course there's the most obvious, being one class higher than about the three hundred Freshmen. The first couple of pep rallies went with the normal screaming, shouting and shaving cream, but no real harm was done.

Then there's always the long waited for car keys! The Sophomore year has always been the year for many new drivers to take to the roads and this year was no exception. Besides all of the other requirements for obtaining a driver's license, Sophs patiently spent one quarter in a drivers ed. class, watching movies and learning driving techniques.

Looking for possible Sadie Hawkins dates, Kristina Kohler, Mary Doherty and Tracey Sherman laugh at the thought of asking a Freshman.

85 Makes Many Goals, Friends

Settling into the hectic schedule of Fort Hunt school life, the Sophomores finally became involved in the many afterschool social activities, clubs, and sports. Many new friends and lasting relationships were made which are and will continue to be an important part of the Sophomores' future years at the Fort.

The leadership and maturity of the class has grown with each passing year. Sophomores have made more prominent goals for the future and have begun to achieve them as their second year at the Fort quickly passed by.

Finding his class boring, Anthony McCallum can't resist the chance to get some extra sleep.

Sophs Showcase Special Spirit

The very spirited Sophomore Class was well represented during the 1982 Homecoming week. They placed first in the float competition with the tribute to the 20th Birthday of Fort Hunt. They placed 1st among the classes for hall decorating.

Stephanie Caffery, the secretary of the class, commented, "The class seemed more spirited and more organized this year. We knew what we were doing!" This was very evident. The class was represented in the Homecoming court by popular Tracey Gibbons and Patty Sheehan.

While anticipating the night to come, and trying not to fall off, Tracey Gibbons and Patty Sheehan smile all the way down Waywood Boulevard.

Council Formed

This past year the Class of 1985 created a new concept in school politics: the very first class council. Led by the class officers, the Council was designed to keep all students of the class informed and involved in school activities. According to the system, each Sophomore English class voted one responsible representative whose job it was to attend a monthly, after-school meeting with the other Council members and class officers.

After discussing upcoming activities in school, each representative reported back to his class with an "agenda." Thus, all students were kept up-to-date on what was to come in the next month.

Explained Vice President Mary Anne Beeby, "This council prevents people from using the excuse, 'I didn't know what was going on.' It forces them to be aware of school and class activities."

Strong Officers Lead the Way

As well as keeping their class well informed on important subject matter, this year's Sophomore Class Officers kept very busy in student activities. The '85 class President Jeanette Paulino, Vice President Mary Anne Beeby, Treasurer Ellen Dux and Secretary Stephanie Caffery, organized the building of the Homecoming Float, which led their class to victory.

These truly dedicated officers also took time to organize the very first class council in the history of the 82-83 school year. The officers provided strong leadership in augmenting the Sophomore class spirit and also increased the class funds.

Ellen Dux, Treasurer; Jeanette Paulino, President; Mary Anne Beeby, Vice President and Stephanie Caffery, Secretary lead the class of '85 to a successful Sophomore year.

Cheering Gals Spark Spirit

"Cheerleading has brought us together with friendship. We can all communicate with each other, it's a fun experience!" comments Bette Couch.

Led by Dhea Bethea and Donna Gonzales the Frosh Cheerleaders learned new cheers and exciting motions involving splits, pyramids, and other stunts.

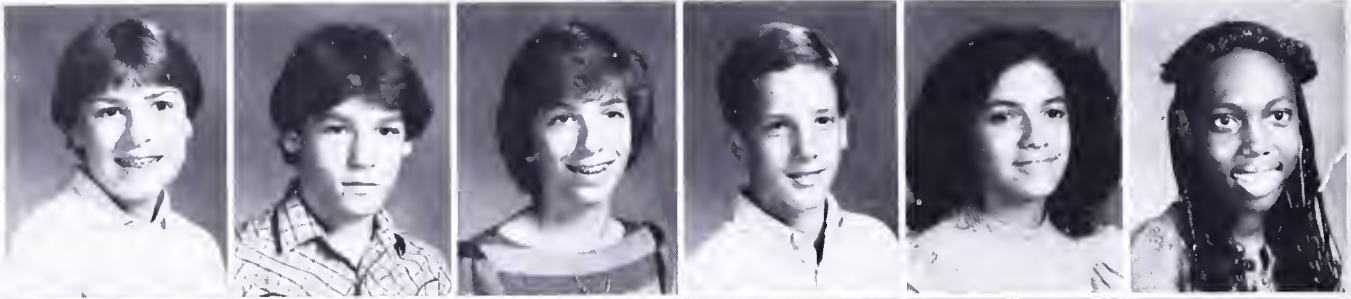

Working hard to raise money for equipment and uniforms, the girls sold candy and programs, held bake sales and car washes.

Marianne Jedrzewski, treasurer and secretary, said they made up to $100 on every sale and fund raiser. The historian, Beth Lancaster, stated that she had, "watched and recorded all of our activities and noticed our sisterly love!"

Cheering on their victorious Freshman team, Beth Lancaster and Krissy Oehrlein execute a spirited cheer.

In kindergarten our biggest joy was to write the alphabet by ourselves! As the years progressed, we learned more than we realized. When junior high came, we were all grateful for that stored away knowledge.

During our first year in high school we discovered new ways of life. The freshman year is very important to everyone. It was the door to the future, where we stopped looking at yesterday and faced tomorrow.

Frosh Officers

Instill Spirit

The Class of '86 showed spirit during the first week of school, when the Freshman elections were held. The candidates passed around badges, slogans, and put up posters showing their desire to be elected. The class officers elected were: President — Jon Gray, Vice President — Larry Henry, Secretary — Pipi Draper, and Treasurer — Beth Lancaster.

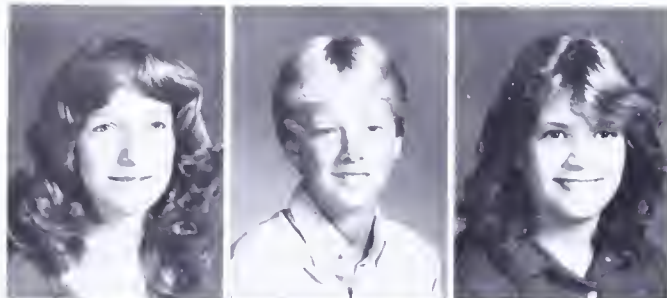

Our spirit continued to be shown at the first pep rally. As one freshman said, "The pep rally was really exciting, but you had to race home afterward or become the target for a Sophomore!" Yes, the Freshmen were targets for the Sophomore's revenge with shaving-cream.

Jon Gray, president; Larry Henry, vice-president; Pipi Draper, secretary; and Beth Lancaster, treasurer, lead their class through a year of new events.

Freshmen Make Good Impressions

At last, we've tasted the life of high school! From being at the top in junior high to sinking down to the "lowest form of life," (according to upper-classmen) the freshman. We, the class of '86, have made it through one trying year of high school and are possibly ready for three more.

At Fort Hunt we were shown the new ways of living: hour after hour of homework, endless tests, new interests (clubs and societies), a time to become a person of our own.

Our Freshman year, a new start, was a new life of trying to fit in without being squashed. This was our year to make a good impression.

Freshmen Savor HC Festivities

The long-awaited time for homecoming came at last, and the Freshmen took second place with their float. Having various ideas as to what homecoming meant, the Frosh were ready for an evening of excitement!

The football game was viewed with the anticipation of a Federal victory; we got our wish as we crushed the Hawks 28-8! The night started off with a bang from the music of the marching band. At half-time the excitement continued with the parade including our own Janice Nedbal and Lynn Templeman. "When I was elected princess, I was very excited and also nervous. When it was time for me to get in the car and ride around the field, I knew this would be an experience I wouldn't forget!" remembered Janice.

With nervous smiles, the Freshmen princesses, Janice Nedbal and Lynn Templeman prepare to ride in the traditional Homecoming parade.

On Pajama Day, Ellen Surles shows her enthusiasm by dressing up in her favorite pajamas.

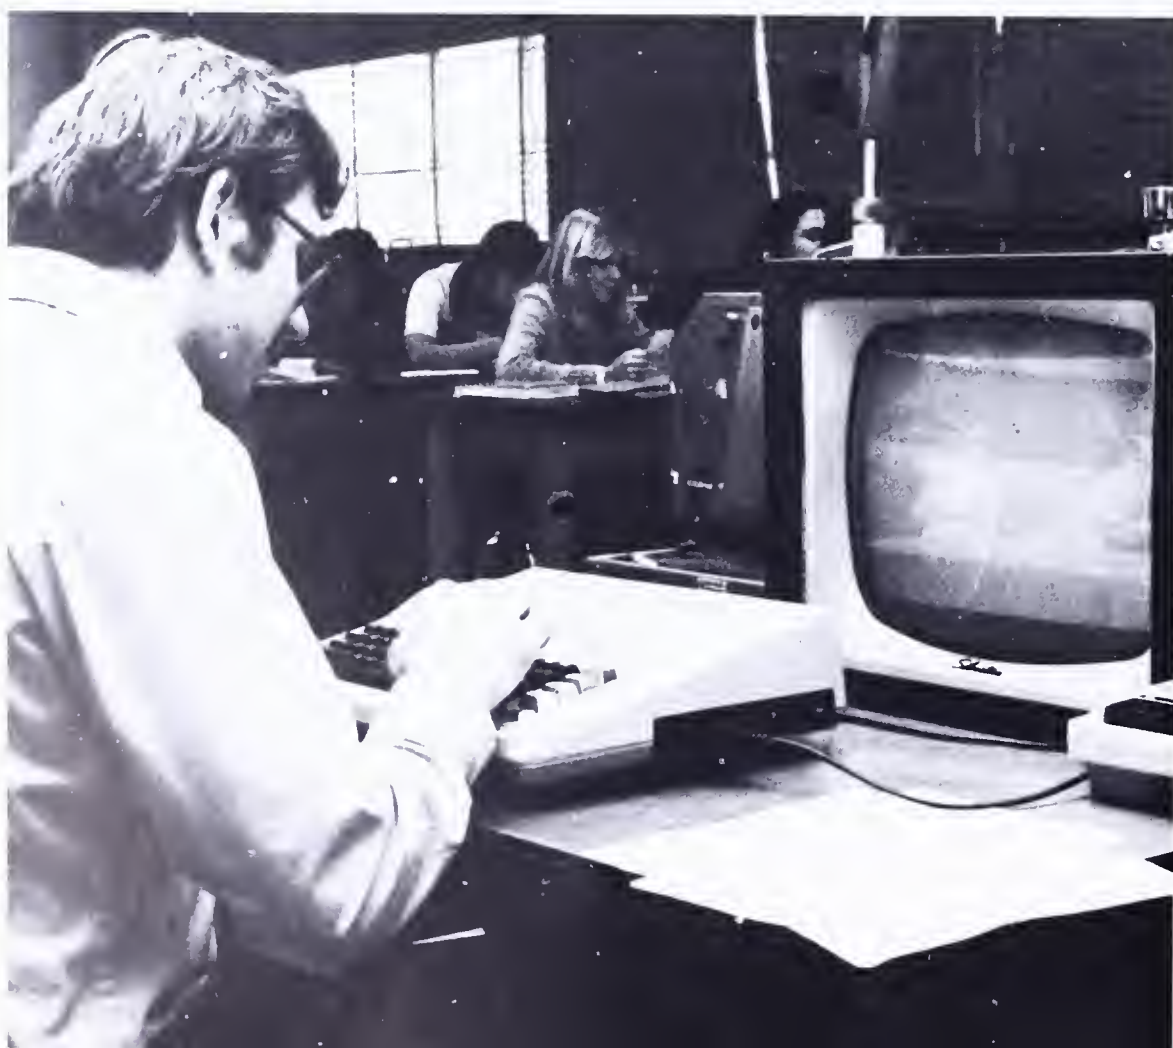

Our years at Fort Hunt have been, are, and will be, spent learning. The pressure was always on us to finish one assignment and start the next, take this test, read that book, and do more, more, more. Though it was sometimes difficult to put forth our best effort, we usually withstood the strain and met the challenges that faced us.

Despite all the work, we still managed to have a good time. The minutes during lunch and between classes were spent catching up on the latest occurrences with our friends.

Through all we did and learned, one simple fact was ignored; without Academics, there would be no Fort Hunt.

English Is an Essential Skill

When we were very little, we drew lines and curves, our first lesson in writing. As we progressed in life, speaking became for us a kind of victory. Now in high school we find English means much more than that; it's a language, our native tongue.

The numerous masterpieces which we read and analyze, the constant flood of grammar rules, and the many expressions through writing all help to expand our knowledge of this vital tool. Since English is required for all students at all grade levels, no one is able to escape its clutches. Even though the months may drag for many and fly for some, there is always more to learn about the way language is shaped and woven into the fabric of everyday communication.

The English Department assists its students by giving special attention to the study of vocabulary and to other skills needed to perform well on SAT's. Critical thinking and all genres of literature are studied and seniors participate in the library research process. Honors programs and advanced placement classes are offered in addition to the more traditional approach.

Library's Shelves Offer Knowledge

Among the 19,202 books and encyclopedias housed in Fort Hunt's library, it would be difficult for one not to find something to pique his interest. This area offers a place to go for quiet thoughts or last minute homework!

Sometimes an entire class can be found searching or doing research on a wide variety of subjects ranging from art to zoology. There is always that opportunity to just drop in during the lunch periods and before or after school for help.

A pleasant atmosphere is provided and maintained by our staff of librarians who stand ready to help with an assignment in many ways. Every visit made to our library offers a world of information and leisure reading.

History Teaches Lessons for Life

Social studies courses are vital to the total academic program of high school students. Freshmen through seniors may choose from a wide range of course offerings from world cultures to American government.

Special elective courses such as the popular inter-disciplinary offerings in Modern European Civilization and American Civilization show the interrelationships of the humanities to the study of history and literature. Other college preparatory courses such as Honors Government 12, economics, and psychology round out this department's many subjects.

Breaking the monotony of lectures and note taking are such activities as debates, oral presentations, seminars, audio-visual presentations, and an occasional field trip. This past year a few classes had the opportunity to hear some of the candidates prior to the November 1982 elections.

Fine Arts Play Important Role

At one point in our lives we all become interested in some form of fine arts. From a very early age we have discovered that "All the World's a Stage" and have played various parts in the drama of living. Many of us have studied an instrument or raised our voices in chorus. Still others have become paper and paint friends, living on the artist's scales.

As our drama department shows a comedy or musical on the boards, we experience the thrill of a live theater production and thus escape our own world for a time. As an instrumental group plays in concert or a choral group performs in an assembly, we are transported into the world of music. When the art department's paper becomes speckled with life, the praise and pride is there to be honored. This is the time that fine arts play an important part in our curriculum at Fort Hunt.

Playing to perfection, the band practices under Mr. George Etheridge's instruction.

Students Explore Earth, Universe

Although science may be divided into many categories, it is basically a branch of knowledge with a body of facts or truths systematically arranged and showing the operation of general laws.

Earth science, biology, chemistry, physics and astronomy are the studies of the elements of the universe and offered to Fort Hunt students. These classes provide an opportunity to explore the earth and the universe, studying all forms of life and chemical elements as well as laws of nature.

In order to qualify for college admission and to be better able to understand our surroundings, each student takes at least two years of science.

Students Let Off Nervous Energies

All of us needs time off from our hectic daily schedules to relieve some of the pressures and work in a more relaxed atmosphere. The practical arts courses offer education vital to our everyday needs as well as that much needed break in the day.

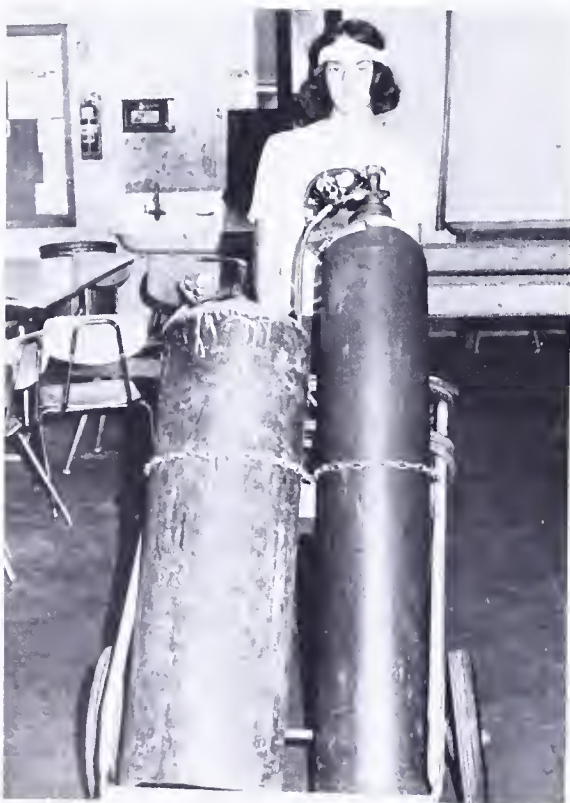

Burnt food, ripped seams and messy kids are all a part of the classes in home economics. But the rewards are many when the stomach grows or the pants split their seat or the neighbor's kids descend on you.

If you're more into building and repair, industrial arts courses can be selected which show a person how to create useful projects. Repairing a fan belt while leaning under the hood of a car is experience which can save an expensive repair bill later.

More technical courses in architectural or mechanical drawing and electronics are useful introductions to possible career opportunities for many. The knowledge gained coupled with the actual experience make all of these courses a very practical choice.

Striving to finish his assignment, on time, Paul Musselman takes a closer look.

Math Develops Logical Thinking

One of the classes in a majority of students' schedules is a course in mathematics. In addition to the regular required credits ranging from algebra and geometry, many students go on to take more advanced courses such as trigonometry and/or calculus.

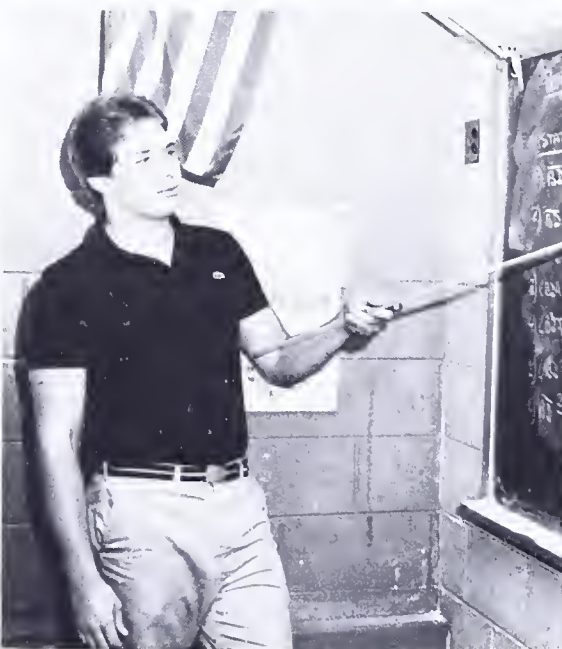

Computer science courses are also offered to students interested in this field of study. More than doubling its popularity this year, this course provides four Atari, three Newlett Packards, and two Nec computers for the students to work with. Computer Science II was offered for the first time this year at the Fort and a course in computer literacy was given to a variety of faculty members from many departments.

Courses in mathematics give students the necessary processes and skills needed to do logical reasoning and problem solving.

Business World Captures Students

The world of business offers unlimited opportunities and Fort Hunt's Business Education Department provides a variety of elective courses to prepare students to enter that world. Who doesn't need to know how to type enough to get him through that research paper or college recommendation?

Personal use skills needed to conduct everyday business affairs may be acquired by enrolling in shorthand or accounting. Laws related to all business transactions help in real life situations. Competent students may even work in entry level jobs as an extension of classroom instruction and receive good pay as well as credit.

Using the word processor, Karyn Kranz gets her homework done in a hurry.

Industrious accounting students work on a project.

Languages Teach Other Cultures

Walking into one of the foreign language classes, one may be greeted with "Hóla," or "Alló," or "Salve" or even "Guten Tag." Such words of greeting become familiar passwords to students of Spanish, French, Latin, and German at the Fort.

A renewal interest in classical language has produced increased enrollments in the Latin program and upper level courses continue to be offered in all foreign tongues.

Field trips are a vital part of the Language Department's curriculum and students have participated in Latin Bowls at the University of Maryland and German students observed life of a century ago in the Pennsylvania Dutch Country.

Two major activities of the school year which enjoy the participation of all students enrolled in a foreign language are the International Festival held just before the winter holidays and the late winter International Banquet. Both events give the students an opportunity to savor delicacies of the various cultures and enjoy entertainments native to the people of other countries.

Although most students take two years of a foreign language simply because it is a graduation requirement, many go on to their fourth or fifth year, and some become interested and pursue it as a career.

Fitness Is a Federal Goal

Twenty years ago when the Fort opened, a girl wouldn't be caught dead in the boy's gym; but times have changed and classes are now coed with guys and gals playing on the same teams. Gone are the days of uniforms and all sports are open to all students, even lady weight lifters.

Freshmen soon learn the philosophy of "Growism," meaning there are three ways to do things: the right way, the wrong way, and the Grow way. In addition to team sports, the program includes AR and CPR training and the rules of the road in Drivers Education classes and in actual driving sessions.

The interesting and active programs offered in physical education give the student body a chance to let off a little steam and the opportunity to keep in shape at the same time.

Not only does the Guidance Department help students choose courses to fulfill graduation requirements, but also they consider individual's hobbies, grades and future plans in an attempt to develop each person to his best potential.

In an effort to aid the students in other ways, the department has devoted a special section to a college career center and job placement program. These two programs have been developed to assist students to explore their future career desires and suggest the experience they need to attain them.

Team Directs School Program

On the agenda today is a discussion of creative prevention and apprehension of class cutters, assignments for a number of evening functions, budget requests for books and supplies, and approval of activities for the monthly calendar — the agenda is for an administrative staff meeting.

The group of people who occupy that front suite of offices did much to insure the smooth operation of the school's program. The hours spent at their desks were filled with endless reports to be completed, students to see, and parents to confer with. They oversaw scheduling of both curricular and extra-curricular activities as well as supervised the cafeteria and the hallways and parking lots of Fort Hunt. The average ground covered in a typical day for one of these persons was five miles.

For some students the administrators may have seemed to lurk around every corner, but for all of us they did what was necessary to get the job of educating 1,363 teenagers done. Enforcing school policies went far beyond sitting around that rectangular table; they reached out into the very heart of this school's community and made Fort Hunt come alive!

Fort's Old Guard Celebrate Year 20

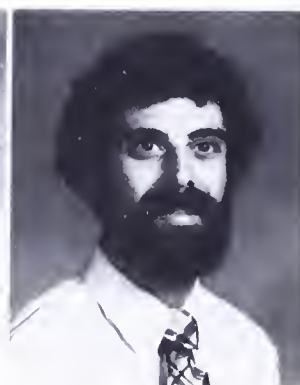

As Fort Hunt ends the celebration of its twentieth year anniversary, ten people look back on the close of the school's first year in operation. Only three counselors and seven teachers have been a part of the Fort since before the 1983 graduates were even born.

These people have counseled and taught students since Elvis and the Beatles were big, the teenage revolts, before the school smoking lounge, the "Spirit of '76," the burning and near closing of Fort Hunt, Women's Liberation and now into the '80's.

Support Staff Aids Students

Making sure that the school is kept clean and all technical operations are performing smoothly, the Custodial Staff is busy from early morning until late at night. Mrs. Katherine Spruell, building supervisor, and Mr. William Barge, assistant building supervisor, oversee a wide variety of tasks which include cleaning, setting up for dances, and sprucing up the cafeteria.

Providing students and faculty members with a nourishing, balanced, and tasteful lunch daily, the Cafeteria Staff has their work cut out for them. An expanded soup and salad bar seems to add new converts each day. The Big Bite remains popular with the hearty eaters, and even brown baggers need their milk and ice cream.

The total operation of the school is dependent on many individuals to get the job done. The Custodial and Cafeteria Staff work diligently to provide for the needs of all staff and students.

Practices, games, matches, triumphs and disappointments . . . Over the years sports have become a way of life for many Fort Hunt students. From some who participated in a single sport to others who seemed to play on every possible team, the Fort's jocks abounded.

With the help of the enthusiastic cheerleaders, we rallied to support our teams and cheer them on to victory. As a result we were the proud recipients of numerous titles and awards. From swimming to soccer, playing a sport gave our competitive natures a much-wanted feeling of achievement.

Feds Prevail

Aided by All District Robert "Punkin" Funderburk's running, the Fort Hunt offense again showed that it was an incredible force in the Gunston District. Mr. Creneti remarked that, "They did a pretty good job, and by the end of the year they were able to put points on the board." Indeed they did do a pretty good job. The Varsity Federals came within a game of winning the district title for a third consecutive season.

Credit also goes to the offensive line; it was a literal strongbox. They kept much of the trouble off Quarterbacks Eddie Goodwin and Brian Judd's shoulders.

These two players also had an admirable year producing many game winning plays. This year's success stemmed from the offense's strength, agility, and intelligence.

Running the halfback option to perfection, Robert Funderburk lets one fly.

Intercepting a Groveton pass, linebacker Jay Gros breaks away from two tacklers.

Defense Has Tough Year

After struggling through the first three games of the season, the inexperienced Federal defense finally began to display its power. Senior Linebacker Jay Gros commented, "We played well but we needed to be aggressive and hit harder. At the beginning of the season we were inexperienced and our playing showed it."

The improving defense began to show its strength against Edison as they limited the Eagles to 11 points for the first victory of the year. The following week the defense allowed only 7 points in a victory over Fairfax.

Homecoming proved to be the defensive units' strongest game as they shut down the helpless Hayfield offense. The defense then continued to play well the following week in allowing the Tigers only 7 points.

Going into the final two games of the season the team needed one victory to wrap up the Gunston District Championship. The defense played inconsistently allowing 21 points against arch rival Mount Vernon and 19 against Lee.

The potent Federal offense gets set to run their play.

After scrambling for a large gain, Quarterback Brian Judd and the rest of the offense prepare to head to the huddle.

Upholding one of the many traditions of Fort Hunt, Bryan Guthrie and Robert Funderburk stand proudly with their parents.

Rah-Rahs Boost Spirit

This year's Varsity Cheerleaders contributed quite a bit to the Fort Hunt spirit with their enthusiasm and dedication.

The sixteen eager girls displayed this winning spirit by capturing the award of excellence at the University of Richmond cheerleading camp sponsored by the National Cheerleading Association. "We really learned a lot this year," stated captain Jenny Howay; "for evaluation we received a blue ribbon every night and the most spirited!"

Being a cheerleader requires many hours of hard work. Not only did these energetic girls maintain good grades and boost school spirit, they also attended various sports events and acted as secret pals providing many banners and goodies. "We may be procrastinators," added senior Joni Takane, "but when the job was done and done well!"

JV Squad Finishes 1st

An even balance of a stingy defense and a powerful offense led the Junior Varsity Football squad to another Gunston District Championship. Coaches Marty Bonnett and Steve Foglio's team finished the season with a record of 7-1, suffering only a loss to arch rival Mt. Vernon.

The season started with victories over Hayfield and Groveton. After the first loss of the year to Mt. Vernon came five impressive victories. The last, a decisive victory over Mt. Vernon to secure the Gunston Championship.

The JV Team was cheered on by the Junior Varsity Cheerleaders at every game. The two captains, Mary Anne Beeby and Cathy Gray, led the cheerleading squad in keeping up the football team's spirit. These cheerleaders also revealed their enthusiasm at wrestling matches, basketball games and other school activities throughout the school year.

Frosh Take Title Again

The 1982 Freshman Football Team had a tremendous year with the powerful defense led by Tom Kiernan and Lamont Sanders. John Holland, Gary Gross, and Julian "Tuffy" Carter held their opponents to only 78 points for the whole season.

The team was coached by Dennis Patrick and Dan Denston who led the team to a 1982 Gunston District Title by beating their biggest rival, Mount Vernon, 21-14.

The devastating offense was led by the accurate passing of quarterback Mike Webb and skillful running by Ryan Drummond. The team brought together old friendships and new relationships and the cheerleaders cheered on their team to a 5-1 record and a Gunston District championship. "The cheerleaders really boosted our spirits before and during the game," remarked a Freshman player.

Stick Women Place Third

Although young and inexperienced (9 out of 13 varsity players graduated in 82) the Varsity Field Hockey Team still proved to be strong. The team placed third in the district and just missed the regional playoffs.

Karen Gahart, one of the team's co-captains (voted MVP by teammates), with Charity Gailliot did the scoring while Susan Kewer, co-captain, led the offense. The defense was led by Suzanne Surles, Sandy Smith, and goalie, Bliss Simmons, who helped keep the scoring down until the offense decided to play.

Coach Wanda Peterson commented that, "... the team seemed to be a second half team all year." This was evident in the Mt. Vernon game when the Feds were down 2-0 with only 10 minutes to play. They came back to tie it up and went into overtime and then penalty flicks, placing their last one in the cage to win 3-2.

The team never lacked in spirit and always hoped to produce another district title, but the girls fell short. Prospects for next year's team appear brighter for only four players are graduating this year.

Out cutting the Groveton player, Sandy Smith picks-up the ball, driving it out of the circle.

Concentrating on the ball, Karen Gahart is determined to place the penalty flick in the cage.

The JV Team had a remarkably strong season this year. Made up of freshmen and sophomores, it was a year of learning the basic skills of hockey. Coach Sue Hickman, second year as coach, was very pleased with this year's progress of the team.

The team was sparked by leading scorer Nikki Brew, who made three out of the four goals scored. The defense was held together by Janie Jessey, who received the Coaches Award, and goalie, Kathy Perry.

The team ended up third in the district. The team hopes to be a stronger team next year with many returning players from this year's team.

Young Netwomen Place 2nd in Gunston District

Under the direction of Coach Dorothy Robinson, and led by Senior Captains Tessa Lyons and Laura Venezia, the Girls Tennis Team came out swinging this season. They followed through to a second place finish in the Gunston District.

Beginning in late August, practices were held daily for two hours or more. Senior player, Connie Boguess, recalls, "Our practices really helped bring the team members together and built enthusiasm for us."

At the Fall Awards Banquet, Senior Melanie Bouton won the Coaches Award, while teammates voted Tessa Lyons as the Most Valuable Player.

Despite the uncommon number of injuries and illnesses during match play this season, the players gained much experience which should prove valuable in their attempt to recapture the district title next year.

Runners Earn District Title Despite Setbacks

Beginning their season with a great trip to their beloved Camp Ramblewood, the Girls' Cross Country Team worked themselves back into running form. They went into their first meet of the season as the "underdogs" and came out on top, winning the team title of the 8th Annual Judges Classic. Senior Julia Reddick commented, "It was a surprise for all of us, and I feel that the victory gave the team more confidence as a whole."

The Lady Federals added another Gunston District Title to their victories, placing five runners in the top ten places. Senior Julia Reddick took the individual title.

The Boys' Cross Country Team had an unfortunate beginning, but prevailed as the Gunston District Champions at the end of the season. Plagued by illnesses during the first half of the season, Senior Bob Murray finally was restored to health just as the District, Regional, and State Meets came into focus. Murray led the Federal Boys to the Gunston District Title, winning the individual title himself. He went on to place second in the Northern Region and seventh in the state.

At the Fall Sports Awards Banquet, Senior Bob Murray received the Most Valuable Player Award. The Coaches' Award was received by Senior Bill Gavert. Receiving the Most Valuable Player Award and the Coaches' Award were Seniors Julia Reddick and Lilla Butler respectively.

Pacing herself for a strong second mile, Meg Cercy (#1261) strides down Cardiac Hill on the three-mile UVA course.

During the final mile of her race on the difficult UVA course, Terri Snell (#1263) summons all of her strength, striving to gain position.

FH Dominates

The Varsity Boys' Basketball Team played magnificent ball this season. Much of the team's strength came from superior playing ability and a general feeling of spirit and closeness. However, also largely responsible for the boys' dramatic winning was new coach Tom Casey.

Although he had previous experience in coaching Varsity Basketball, the 1982-1983 season was his first year as a coach at Fort Hunt. Stressing tough practices and a determined style, Coach Casey led his team to the Gunston District Tournament Championship (which they won) and ultimately to a spot in the Regional play-off.

Thanks to Coach Casey and his group of truly talented athletes, Fort Hunt High school now enjoys possessing a reputation for one of the finest basketball teams in the region.

Shooting for an easy two points, Mike Meade outjumps his opponent.

Showing the joy of victory, Steve Landon celebrates after winning a close game.

During warmups Matt Kropf, Steve Landon and Brendan Fogarty await their chance to shoot.

Looking to pass off, Chuck Martin spots an open man.

Varsity Shows Agility, Speed

Never has basketball been so exciting or intense at Ft. Hunt than during the 1982-83 season. The team was not only quick and clever, but they also exhibited great agility and strength.

Eight boys returned to varsity positions from last year: Robert (Punkin') Funderburk, the primary ballhandler, outside shooter Mike Day, co-captains Mike Meade and Chuck Martin, Brendan Fogarty, Paul Allensworth, Carlos Martin and Matt Kropf.

Newcomer Steve Landon also made a solid start and played very good ball. Explains Senior Mike Day, "Everyone got along well — it was a jovial team. We had a lot of fun but also really performed."

The team's closeness and co-operation produced a magnificent season; not only did the Feds dominate all of their opposition, they captured the Gunston District Title for the first time in Fort Hunt's sports history.

JV Finished 9-11 Season

With an all sophomore and freshman team inexperience will often show. This was the case with George Hamel's JV Basketball Team. The team struggled through a disappointing 9 win and 11 loss season, finishing with a 4 and 7 record in the district and 3rd place in the regular season. Of the 11 losses 7 were by fewer than 5 points, and 3 losses came in over-time. In the tournament the boys lost in the opening round 60-64 to Edison.

Displaying his awesome hook shot, Preston Green nails two points.

Frosh Boys Post Gains

This year's Freshmen Basketball Team, led by Coach Ken Burton, had a successful season. With Lamont Sanders and John Holland paving the way, the team ended this year with an 11-9 record. Other players such as Donald "Poopie" Jones, Randy McCray, and John Power also helped in their impressive season.

There were no injuries during the season to affect the team's play. Coach Burton stated that, "This team has been the most unselfish team that I have ever had." He also said that everybody was, "Willing to pass to the open man," and that it, "Was a total team effort."

Fighting off a defender, Tiny Coleman dribbles down the court.

Strong Team Finishes 2nd

Although their season ended abruptly with a one point loss in the Gunston District Tournament, the JV Girls Basketball Team had a very successful season. Dr. Phil Armstrong's squad finished the season with 14 victories and 5 defeats, 4 of which were by a single point.

In the district, the girls posted a strong 8 wins and 2 losses, earning them second place in the regular season.

The team was led by sophomores Erin Flanagan and Diane Grimm, both of whom were moved to Varsity late in the year. Coach Armstrong summed up the season by saying, "This is the most talented team from top to bottom I've coached. Many of these players will contribute to the Varsity team next year."

Scoring a foul shot, Lee Seau helps Feds defeat Hayfield.

Roundball Is Back to Stay

"The 1982-83 season for the Girl's Varsity Basketball Team proved that the success of the previous year wasn't just luck," states Coach Jansen.

This year's team was even better than last; the season started off with a boom. For the first few games the team was undefeated; however, by the mid season they were on regular terms. Although many injuries such as a hurt knee, back, ankle, and finger, the flu, and wisdom teeth being pulled plagued the team, the girls held their reputation as being awesome.

The success of the team can be attributed to the seniors, who were strongly supported by the underclassmen. Sarah Flanagan was not only the most valuable player but also an All District Player. Other All District players were Karen Boska and Margaret Duffy.

As an overview it might be said that the Girl's Varsity Basketball Team has definitely brought basketball back to the Fort.

Team's Spirit Shines Through

Hard work, determination, and enthusiasm characterized Fort Hunt's Varsity Wrestling Team and led them through a victorious season. With a 13-1 overall record, undefeated in the district, and second place in the Gunston District tournament, this year's team proved to be one of the best in Fort Hunt's history.

Known for their strength in the lower weights with district champions Sean Dooley at 98 pounds, Doug Perry at 112, and Mike Novegratz at 132, 185 pound grappler Elba Jackson came through with another first place for Fort Hunt.

This team's "never-say-die" attitude and spirit especially shined when they defeated their rival, Mount Vernon, in a dual meet for the first time in the school's history. Fort Hunt Varsity wrestlers: a team to be proud of!

Heavyweight wrestler Chris Gros brings the team another victory.

At 145 pounds, Eric Lindsey uses strength and endurance to maneuver his opponent.

With deep concentration, Bill Cunningham works his opponent.

While setting up a takedown, Jay Gros intimidates his opponent.

In domination of his opponent, Sean Dooley stays in control.

In an attempt to roll his opponent on his back, Mike Novogratz uses a power-half.

JV Grapplers Take District

The Junior Varsity wrestlers climaxed an excellent year as they won the district championship at Lee High School, carrying on the federal tradition of last year.

Lee Poythress, Jay Dell, Mike Lindsey, Mike York and Everett Ruffner were the key standouts who led the young team through impressive performances. "We were really fortunate to have two young but outstanding coaches," stated Coach Foglio, "Kevin Owen and Mark Foglio definitely guided a very successful J.V. Program."

Weight lifting programs and camps are just part of Coach Foglio's plans for next year's season.

Girls Soccer Kicks Off New Season

Swimmers Win District Title

The Swim Team started its season strongly and continued throughout. Coach Larry Gaudreault explains, "It's a small team with a lot of quality." A few of the standouts who demonstrated their "quality" were Regional champs Nancy Greenleese, who won the 500-meter freestyle and Kent Demaine, who took second place in the 100-meter butterfly and 200-meter freestyle.

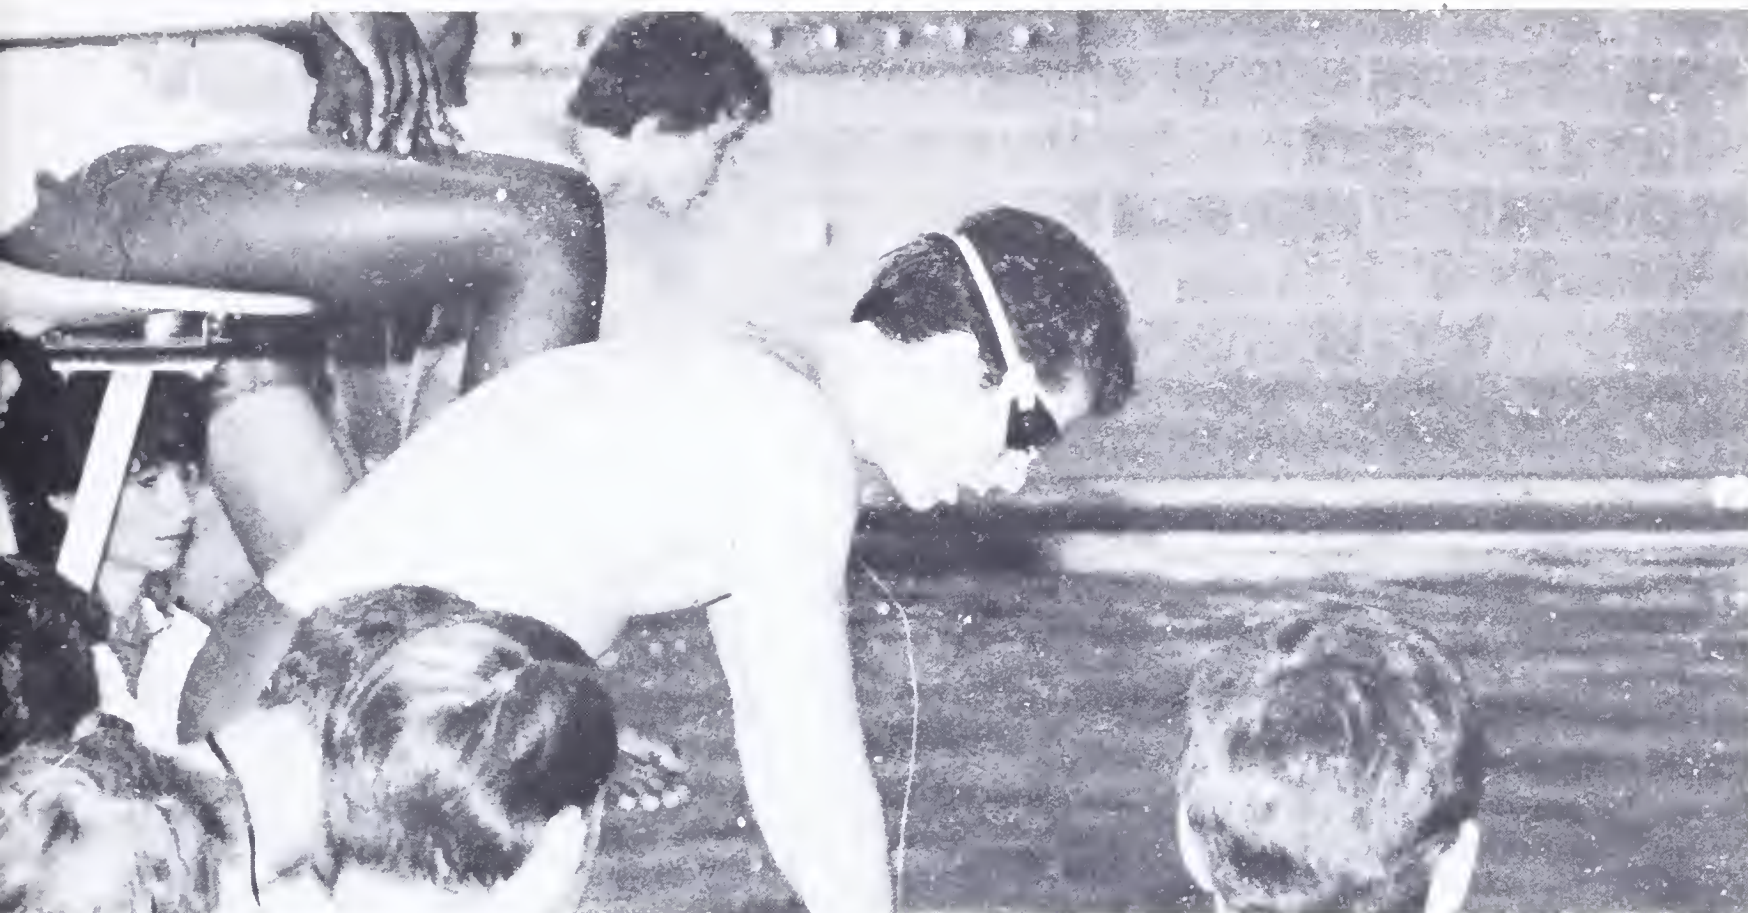

Keeping with the team's tradition, it captured the District title, and took fourth place in the Region.

Getting ready to run, the Girls' Track Team stretches while the Boys' Team exerts themselves around the blacktop.

Boys Track Wins Title

Starting the season off with a strong team, the Boys Track Team was one of the major threats in the region. With returning lettermen Bill Gavert, Mohammad Najafi, Bob Murray, and Kevin Lawrence, the distance teams had no trouble running away with all the races.

In the shot and field events, Shot-putters Mark Winebrenner and Dennis Phillips finished well in districts.

Though there will be no Bob Murray and no Bill Gavert next year, Mohammad Najafi, Kevin Lawrence and other young talent will probably have no trouble covering up the slack.

The number one team gathers around the District Trophy.

GIRLS INDOOR TRACK TEAM

Smiling in approval of the outcome of the race, Terri Snell looks pleased.

Girls Track Wins Another

Keeping their winning tradition alive, the girls Track Team coached by Andy Tisinger won the Gunston District Title.

With the help of returning seniors Holly Holland, Aisha Davis, Robin Blunt, Julia Reddick and Lila Butler, there was no problem winning with that combination and other young talent. The only runner advancing all the way to state was Julia Reddick. In spite of much pressure on her, her talent helped her come in second in the 1000 at the state meet.

Going for the long distance, Marc Lerro flies over the mats.

Passing an opponent, Bill Gorton streaks for the finish line.

Lining up for their rendition of "Pac-Man," Drill Team members await the music.

Drill Team Keeps in Step

The 1982-1983 Drill Team started off with a hit performance at a year's end soccer game and they kept up the good work over the summer, coming home with all the trophies from camp.

Starting off in the fall, although not having a class this year, the team maintained their unity. Mrs. Schuster, the school's new chorus teacher, also became the Drill Team's new sponsor. Having a new sponsor lifted the team's spirits, and many ideas were contributed.

Jennifer Caffery and Debbie

Slater were the team co-captains who, with the help of Mrs. Titus (a parent sponsor), held the team together through thick and through thin.

Outside of school, Drill Team participated in competitions and parades. Football and basketball just would not have been the same with out those 41 super girls.

During the pep rally, Diana Titus-Allen performs to "We Got the Beat" by the Go-Gos.

Performing perfectly, Valerie Myers executes her move precisely.

While sitting on the bleachers, several members of the Drill Team wait anxiously for their next presentation.

Gymnasts Finish Third

Coached by Dorothy Robinson, the Gymnastics Team was made up of both experienced and inexperienced girls, making the team a strong contender in the district. Having lost only one match in regular season, the girls were only able to pull off a third place finish in the District Tournament, behind Lee and Mt. Vernon.

Standouts in the tournament were Jenny Howay and Lynn Drevlinger, both advancing to regionals. Lynn received second place in the all-around competition and Jenny advanced to regionals on both the beam and floor.

In the regional tournament the team finished an amazing sixth place. Lynn finished with a first place in bars and sixth in the vault, placing her 8th in the all-around competition. She also advanced to the state tournament.

Mike Waller, co-captain, sums it up by commenting "... the team worked well together and did a good job, considering we lost two good gymnasts from last year."

In Districts, Jenny Howay amazes the judges with her fabulous beam routine.

Class of 1983

Now is the time for us to embark,
The Class of '83 has left its mark!
The friendships we've shared, forget we will never,
The sentimental memories will be with us forever!
Through four long years, we were one,
To say goodbye, the time has come.
Out on our own, new opportunities await,
Good-bye old "Fort," it's been great!

Remember when our Sophomore Class . . .

sold t-shirts?
built our bulletin board in Freshmen hall?
organized the first well-attended class council meeting?
learned not to go barefoot at carwashes?
sponsored our well-lit dance?
built the float that won (first place) — then lost?
gained twenty pounds each eating M&M's on credit (that we weren't supposed to)?

With these memories, who could forget our Sophomore year? You made it what it was.

Thanks!

Area Spawning National Class Girls

Girls sports are very much alive and well in Northern Virginia. Major college programs in track and field and basketball consider this area prime recruiting ground for scholarship athletes. As women's soccer becomes more popular at the collegiate level, more and more college recruiters are finding their way to local soccer fields in search of talent.

Title IX, of course, has been a major impetus for the explosion of girls sports both here and across the nation. It paved the way both physically and psychologically for the expansion of women's sports at both the high school and collegiate levels, forcing often reluctant state organizations, local school boards, and old-line, male oriented principals and athletic directors to upgrade women's sports programs or offer new programs where none had previously existed.

On the track and field and cross country scene, Fort Hunt's Derial Rhodes, now at Old Dominion University, Groveton's Susan Allen, now at George Mason University, and Andrea Volpe of Lake Braodock, all earned high school All-American honors in track. They have been joined on that list by Fort Hunt's Sue Miley, now at Penn State University, and Chanley Bregman, now at William and Mary, on the honorable mention list along with Groveton's Angie Jones and current competitors Alisa Harvey of Jefferson and Charlene Burstrom of Yorktown.

It was left to a tall, lithe blonde with a squeaky little girl's voice to catch the major media's attention and popularize girls track and field in the Washington area. Her name was Linda Portasik, now a senior at the University of Tennessee.

Portasik, in her years at Fort Hunt, wowed them from the 80-meter hurdles on the track on up through three miles in cross country. She ran only one year of cross country, her senior year, which was also the inaugural year for high school girls cross country in Virginia. A brilliant student and blessed with good looks, Portasik became an articulate, visible symbol that a girl could compete to the national level and still maintain her femininity.

And it was Portasik's national calibre performances that gave proof to the philosophy of her coach, Andy Tisinger, that the best way to coach girls was "to treat them just like boys," that they didn't need to be coddled.

Now, local girls regularly travel to places like Boston, Philadelphia, Knoxville, Orlando, Gainesville, Kansas City, and points beyond to compete. They consider schools like Stanford, University of Southern California, University of Tennessee and the University of Florida as possibilities for athletic scholarships. They lift weights, train virtually year around, and most do not worry if a contemporary refers to them as "a jock." It is now respectable to be a female athlete.

And it is also a challenge. As Andy Tisinger, the girls track and field coach and cross country coach at Fort Hunt, observed after watching his girls team compete in its first ever cross country meet, "This is undoubtedly the hardest thing (physically) these girls have ever done."

There is no doubt that inequalities still exist, but for those of us who have watched high school sports develop over the last decade in Northern Virginia, the development of girls' sports in this area has been just short of phenomenal. Northern Virginia athletes have made their mark on the national scene, and given the wealth of young athletic talent in the area, they figure to remain a force in years to come. Girls sports have, indeed, come a long way in the last decade.

The Anniversary Ends

Beginnings — they are followed by endings, which in turn are followed by new beginnings. The beginning of this year initiated Fort Hunt's Twentieth Anniversary. Now this school year, 1983, comes to an end, and with it comes the end of the Fort's second decade.

As the class of '83, the twentieth graduating class, anticipated graduation night, the Juniors prepared to take over the Seniors' role, and the Sophomores and Freshmen followed their example.

Starving, Kurt Blackwell and Drew Blome enjoy their meal.

At the end of Typing class, David Hirschkop gives his opinion of the day's events.

The Variety Girls, Lou Bustle, Connie Bougess, Melissa McElhenny, and Laura Harwell, make work look like fun.

Bogged down by paperwork, Mr. Dietze reads through a stack of letters.

At the beginning of the homecoming parade, the Drill Team marches out of the Waynewood pool parking lot.

Marching across the gym, Billy Mills is a part of the traditional pep rally activities.

Watching a friend, Troy Dibell gets a lesson in auto mechanics.

Having completed their assignment, Journalism students proofread each other's work.

A New Chapter Begins

Endings — they are followed by new beginnings, which in turn are followed by more endings. The ending of this year begins a new chapter in the history of Fort Hunt. Future Federals will make, and become a part of, Fort Hunt's history, just as we have. They will continue past traditions and start some of their own.

An eager Fort Hunt student prepares for his next reading assignment.

"You'll never find that file," says Mrs. Yellman to Mrs. Driscoll.

During swim team practice, Mimi Murphy pauses to catch her breath.
